The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Russell Kappelman
543 N Cedar Dr
Midwest City, OK 73130

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Miller
513+s+walker+st

Columbia, SC 29205

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Debra Miller-spencer
1850 Huntington Cir
Brunswick, OH 44212

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
William Miller
9206 Fuller Rd
Chattanooga, TN 37421

=====
From: Millicent Lentz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Millicent Lentz
7791 Bristol Park Dr Unit 3se
Tinley Park, IL 60477-8540

=====
From: Millie Beverly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Millie Beverly

, Georgia 30224

=====
From: Millie Braun
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Millie Braun
541 S Munroe Rd
Tallmadge, Ohio 44278

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Millie Bravo
612 Ocean Dr Apt 02
Manhattan Bch, CA 90266

=====
From: Millie Cotterman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Millie Cotterman
1750 Baker Rd Lot 63
Springfield, Ohio 45504

=====
From: Millie Drayer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Millie Drayer
3254 Birchview Dr
Ravenna, Ohio 44266

=====
From: MILLIE JOHNS
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MILLIE JOHNS
3732 Peyton St
Shreveport, Louisiana 71109
=====

From: Millie Padilla
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Millie Padilla
2117 Briarcliff Cir 30603841
Mount Dora, Florida 32757

=====
From: millie stokes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

millie stokes
PO Box 406
Mount Vernon, Georgia 30445

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Daryl Milligan
5312 Woodsboro Dr
Mesquite, TX 75180

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amber Higgins
770 Clay Dr
Akron, OH 44311

=====
From: millisa phillips
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

millisa phillips
2604 George St
Gulfport, Mississippi 39503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Brian Miller
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 17 S Scotland Ln
Zip: 16101

Do not break the freedom of the internet that should be important enough to be called a "public utility"

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Fernando Roman
120 Montrose Ln
Centerville, GA 31028

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tom Mills
519+anchor+cir
Redwood+city, CA 94065

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Greg Millwood
2230 Ferry Rd
Mooresboro, NC 28114

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joe Flores
3630 Don Julio Blvd
N Highlands, CA 95660

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Cleo Hall
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 03 Shelby Lane Luna, New Mexico
Zip: 87824

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Milmar Mcfadden

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milmari Mcfadden
121 Meadle St
Mount Clemens, Michigan 48043

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
John Hubbard
3057 Perkins Ln W
Seattle, WA 98199

=====

From: Milo Cress
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Milo Cress
377 Humboldt Dr
Canon City, CO 81212

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Milo Cress

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Steven White
7 Honeysuckle Dr
Cranston, RI 02921

=====
From: milo kemper
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

milo kemper
28 Coronado Ave
San Carlos, California 94070

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian Aflague
1242 Matlock Ave Apt 303
Honolulu, HI 96814

=====
From: milton alexander
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

milton alexander
5449 W Van Buren St
Chicago, Illinois 60644

=====
From: Milton Boyer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milton Boyer
1070 Via Verona Dr
Chico, California 95973

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Milton Brockmeyer
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1002 Pine Forest Road
Zip: 28214

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: Milton Davis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milton Davis
536 Wise Five Forks Rd
Warrenton, North Carolina 27589

=====

From: Milton Halls
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milton Halls
141 S. Male St. Apt. 115
Ellsworth, Wisconsin 54011

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milton Kelley
25206 Butterwick Dr
Spring, TX 77389

=====
From: Milton Johnson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPAâ\200\231s draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milton Johnson
210 Woodcreek Dr
PRINCETON, Texas 75407

=====
From: Milton L Johnson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Milton L Johnson
415 W 5th Ave
Mobridge, SD 57601

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Milton L Johnson

=====
From: Milton L waddler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milton l waddler
201 Main St
Portsmouth, Virginia 23701

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milton Marvin
5900 Lonesome Valley Trl
Austin, TX 78731

=====
From: Milton Palmer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldnâ\200\231t the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCCâ\200\231s attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers â\200\223 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCCâ\200\231s rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milton Palmer
6512 Royal Oaks Dr
Forest Hill, Texas 76119

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milton Rankin
4434+w+pintor+pl
Tampa, FL 33616

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milt Slovin
15+stable+ln
Wilmington, DE 19803

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
George Powers
3810 Quaker Ln N
Minneapolis, MN 55441

=====
From: Mimi Mayers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mimi Mayers
1177 Boone St
Macon, Georgia 31217

=====
From: Mimi Miley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mimi Miley
2856 Boatmans Mountain Rd

Morristown, Tennessee 37814

=====
From: Mimi Mitchell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mimi Mitchell
4417 Idlewood Park
Lithonia, Georgia 30038

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: jan
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 8616 Casa Vistosa Ct.NW
Zip: 87120

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's

government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michelle
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 06 white blvd
Zip: 70053

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the

future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brianna Blas
4909 18th Ave Se
Lacey, WA 98503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mimi Tillman
184 Essex Pl
Morganville, NJ 07751

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maryann Wilson
6859 Nw 69th Ct
Tamarac, FL 33321

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Yaya Mi
3424 Linnaeus Pl
Flushing, NY 11354

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ebony Mims
15923 89th Ave
Jamaica, NY 11432

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vicki Mims
7571 Highway 242 W
Lexa, AR 72355

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Wilhelmina Johnson
543 Bettis Trl
Whatley, AL 36482

=====
From: mina elena
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mina elena
1235 Morris Ave Apt 6B
Bronx, New York 10456

From: mina- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marina Mejia
1740+gateway+dr
Vallejo, CA 94589

From: Mina Keith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mina Keith
111 Chalcoppyrite Ct.
Tyrone, New Mexico 88065

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: mina gibb
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 17708 se paradise dr milwaukie oregon
Zip: 97267

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mina Vallabh
12664+w+washington+blvd
Los+angeles, CA 90066

=====
From: Mindica Hill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mindica Hill
925 Brook Ave Apt 100
Suffolk, Virginia 23434

=====
From: mindi Davis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPAâ\200\231s draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mindî Davis
321 Holman St
La Marque, Texas 77568

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mindy Antunes
2778 Se Nicklaus Ct
Hillsboro, OR 97123

=====
From: Mindy Boyd
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mindy Boyd

160 Mae Rd
Conway, South Carolina 29526

=====
From: Mindy Gasaway
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mindy Gasaway
1721 N Market St Apt C
Wichita, Kansas 67214

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Princess Ness
8812 W 48th St
Shawnee, KS 66203

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mindy Nudelman
1911 N Silver Lake Rd
Arlington Hts, IL 60004

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Darwin Phillip
121 Heath Ave
Warwick, RI 02888

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Candace Larson
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address:
Zip: 85302

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim just as Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Larry Neil
Po Box 102
Eckert, CO 81418

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minerva Wilkes
2471 Pilgrim Rd
Chester, SC 29706

=====
From: Minerva Vallejo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minerva Vallejo
1905 Avenue H
Brownwood, Texas 76801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Damon Liu
725+peru+ave
San+francisco, CA 94112

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Darryl Mingo
407 Waterville Dr
Columbia, SC 29229

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minh Nguyen
1812 Bethany Ave
San Jose, CA 95132

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joe Dang
118 Anza St
San Francisco, CA 94118

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Min-hui Wang
636 Ginden Dr
Campbell, CA 95008

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minh Vo
2002+w+victoria+ave
Anaheim, CA 92804

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -\202-\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christine Radu
7266 Se 12th Cir
Ocala, FL 34480

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Therese Dixon
192 Gary Stephens Rd
Pine Knot, KY 42635

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Charles White
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1132 Josephine Ct
Zip: 33875

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Frederick Irwin
7172+cypress+gardens+ln
Las+vegas, NV 89119

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myrna Waldo
217 Desert Chief Dr
Laredo, TX 78045

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minire Lloyd
303+glenwalden+cir
Tryon, NC 28782

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christopher Lambright
4441 Nw Navea Rd
Fort Sill, OK 73503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brenda Lawrence
1928+brandon+cir
Memphis, TN 38114

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers. It's just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cindy Sanchez
669+w+mallory+dr
Bloomington, CA 92316

=====
From: minister- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Price
5100 Waters Ave Apt 201
Savannah, GA 31404

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: KKB
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 813 Fleming Trail
Zip: 75081

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Jean Farrell
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Point lookout
Zip: 11569

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minmin Maung
82 Shelbourne Ave
Daly City, CA 94015

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Shelley Minnick
774+narrows+rd
Connellsville, PA 15425

=====
From: Minnie
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Open Internet

Please keep open internet, without fast or slow lanes! The ordinary consumer will be the ones to suffer if it changes, because big business will be catered to, while the little consumers get put on the back burner! We pay for our internet, so why should it matter who gets the better speeds?!

____Minnie HILLIS REAGOR

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Neff Iii
Po Box 303
Searcy, AR 72145

=====
From: Minnie Beasley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Minnie Beasley
3510 Edgefield Dr
Jonesboro, Arkansas 72401

=====
From: Minnie Emerson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Minnie Emerson
5565 Luckasavage Rd
Plant City, Florida 33567

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minnie Johnson
1210+shelley+ave
Albany, GA 31705

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alexander Minns
1210+n+parrish+st
Baltimore, MD 21217

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Adam Minnick
3011 Zia St Ne
Rio Rancho, NM 87144

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Chandra Minor
12901 Imperial Ave
Cleveland, OH 44120

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Erik Hayes
5419 S M St
Tacoma, WA 98408

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Minou Pak
Po Box 3624
West Point, NY 10997

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Min-richard C Caples
303 Skyview Ln
Vicksburg, MS 39183

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Tucker
104 Commerce St
Greenville, NC 27858

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Fred Ferarese
779+w+arbor+ave
Littleton, CO 80120

=====
From: Mio Hio
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a â\200\234public utilityâ\200\235 and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mio Hio
10011 271st St NW
Stanwood, Washington 98292

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Williams
986+avera+rd
Leakesville, MS 39451

=====
From: miracle moore
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

miracle moore
1008 McFee St
Bastrop, Louisiana 71220

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Paulette Bailey
4000 W Kertulla Ct
Wasilla, AK 99654

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sylvia Gonzales
6522 5th St W
Bradenton, FL 34207

=====
From: Miranda Coleman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Coleman
466 59th St
Oakland, California 94609

=====
From: Miranda Hartwig
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Hartwig
401 Golf Course Rd Apt 22
Mountain Lake, Minnesota 56159

=====
From: Miranda Kola
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Kola
1986 Groveland Rd
Palm Harbor, Florida 34683

=====
From: Miranda Pickett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Pickett
301 Peruque Valley Dr
Wentzville, Missouri 63385

=====
From: Miranda Schmidt
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Schmidt
1080 Yank St
Golden, Colorado 80401

=====
From: Miranda Schwartz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Schwartz
615 E 4th St
Hoisington, Kansas 67544

=====

From: Miranda Taylor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Taylor
2275 Fairway Villas Ln N
Atlantic Beach, Florida 32233

=====
From: Miranda Tocci
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Tocci
216 Marine Dr
Anderson, Indiana 46016

=====
From: Miranda Wayne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miranda Wayne
5421 Howland St
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19124

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miranda Ramirez
4558 217th St
Bayside, NY 11361

=====
From: Mircea Badulescu
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mircea Badulescu
3622 Constellation Rd.
Lompoc, California 93436

=====
From: MIRCEA BADULESCU

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MIRCEA BADULESCU
3622 Constellation Rd.
, California 93436

=====
From: Mircea Badulescu
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mircea Badulescu
3622 Constellation Rd.

Lompoc, California 93436

=====
From: Mireille Diltz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mireille Diltz
7301 Van Grayson Loop
Fayetteville, North Carolina 28314

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mirela Kukic
5134 Goethe Ave
Saint Louis, MO 63109

=====
From: Mirelis Ortiz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mirelis Ortiz
644 Yucatan Dr
Orlando, Florida 32807

=====
From: Mireya Diaz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mireya Diaz
10436 E 43rd St
Tulsa, Oklahoma 74146

=====
From: Mireya Luviano
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mireya Luviano
709 McMullen St
Lufkin, Texas 75904
=====

From: Miriam Aguirre
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Aguirre
700 Biltmore Dr
Las Vegas, Nevada 89101

=====
From: Miriam Boves
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Boves
4440 NW 105th Ter
Coral Springs, Florida 33065

=====
From: miriam calviac
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

miriam calviac
1015 SW 124th Ct
Miami, Florida 33184

=====
From: Miriam Campuzano
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Campuzano
221 E 2nd St
Schuyler, Nebraska 68661

=====
From: Miriam Cordill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Cordill
207 Oliver Ave
Princeton, West Virginia 24740

=====
From: Miriam Espino
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Espino
227 W 102nd St
Los Angeles, California 90003

=====
From: Miriam Feldstein
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Feldstein
19201 NE 20th Ct
North Miami Beach, Florida 33179

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miriam Hymans
730 W Gordon St
Allentown, PA 18102

=====
From: Miriam Joanna Reeves
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Joanna Reeves
986 Clark Road
Gainesville, Texas 76240-8542

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miriam Millan
5871 Makee Ave
Los Angeles, CA 90001

=====
From: Miriam Null
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Null
6915 Walrond Ave
Kansas City, Missouri 64132

=====
From: miriam parente
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Protect open internet

=====
From: Miriam Rogers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Rogers
305 Melrose Ct
Suffolk, Virginia 23434

=====
From: miriam root
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

miriam root
801 vanosdale road #115
knoxville, Tennessee 37909

=====
From: Miriam Sutton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Sutton
10796 W C R 76
Crescent, Oklahoma 73028

=====
From: Miriam Talley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Talley
4014 Big Horn Bend
San Antonio, Texas 78253

=====
From: Miriam Winder
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miriam Winder
4311 Pimlico Rd
Baltimore, Maryland 21215

=====
From: Mirian Hernandez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mirian Hernandez
106 College Rd
Watsonville, California 95076

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lawrence Tormey
22590 Sw 54th Way
Boca Raton, FL 33433

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miricia Gnapp
3426+s+southwood+ct
Wichita, KS 67217

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Donovan Williams
7223 S Paulina St
Chicago, IL 60636

=====
From: Mirna Cruz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mirna Cruz
14811 Beaconsfield Dr
Houston, Texas 77015

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Jarvis
270+marsh+run+rd+apt+b
New+cumberlnd, PA 17070

=====
From: Miroslava Sanchez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miroslava Sanchez
524 Gerard Ave
Orlando, Florida 32825

=====
From: Miroslav Pajic
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miroslav Pajic
117 N 15th St Apt 1302
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers 202-234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miriam Fahem
100 W 35th St Ste C
National City, CA 91950

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lenova Corn
2424 Highway 267 S
Searcy, AR 72143

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Davidson
2128 Memorial Dr Se
Atlanta, GA 30317

=====
From: Mirta Nunez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mirta Nunez

11520 NE 6th Ave Apt 07
Biscayne Park, Florida 33161

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Miryam Miller
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2948 Santa Cruz SE
Zip: 87106

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Isaacs
1413+windsor+rd
Chesapeake, VA 23322

=====
From: Misael Marrero
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misael Marrero
139 Jefferson Ave
Everett, Massachusetts 02149

=====
From: Misael Vargas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misael Vargas
121 E 19th St
Holland, Michigan 49423

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Roshawna Ruff
4822 Mcdougall St
Detroit, MI 48207

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Beverly Wynn
19344 Gallagher St
Detroit, MI 48234

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eric Mckinney
3280 Sw 170th Ave Apt 2202
Beaverton, OR 97006

=====
From: Misha Belcher
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misha Belcher
3640 E 90th Pl 62991966
Thornton, Colorado 80229

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Youngs
75+n+600+w
Provo, UT 84601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Shoemaker
568 Snyder Rd
Martin, TN 38237

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Mullen
po+box+38
Cambridge, VT 05444

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Barbara Hall
208 Krest St

Madera, CA 93637

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Barbara Alderman
1350 Congress St
Middletown, IN 47356

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Annetta Harris
726+shady+oaks+cir
Oxford, MS 38655

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Annmarie Marciante
23302 Roger Dr
Cleveland, OH 44123

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political

controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Camille Grant
8723 Glenwood Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11236

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Andrena Carter
1743 Homestead St
Baltimore, MD 21218

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Carolyn Boger
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2133 E. Co. Rd. 600 S.
Zip: 46118

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alex Centino
1458 Cedar St
Arroyo Grande, CA 93420

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Heather Reynolds
1772 Cherry St
Olean, NY 14760

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Diane Johnson
10+caddo+pl
New+orleans, LA 70129

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Janice Davis
16848 Robin Ln
Victorville, CA 92395

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ramona Weigel-zimmerman
Po Box 1932
Jackson, CA 95642

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Wanda Kiker
1075 General Booth Blvd
Virginia Bch, VA 23451

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gloria White
3101 Norwood Ave
Saint Louis, MO 63115

=====
From: Misshell Goodman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misshell Goodman
1024 Penn St
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17113

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Jackson
2742+st+lawrence+st
Riverside, CA 92504

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Williams
121 La Chene St
Pierre Part, LA 70339

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Paul Nguyen
615 S Euclid St Unit G2
Santa Ana, CA 92704

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Arlene Link
31 Ash St
Carpentersvle, IL 60110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kevin Snow
406 E 9th St
Clovis, NM 88101

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jenny Jackson
834 7th St Apt 61
Bremerton, WA 98337

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joe Stanford
1428 Chalbena Ave
Columbus, GA 31907

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Johnna Smith
9220+rosehill+rd+apt+02
Lenexa, KS 66215

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Debbie Lahmon
6440+collinwood+rd
Horn+lake, MS 38637

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jovon Durden
8246+tracy+ave+apt+10
Kansas+city, MO 64131

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miranda Holmes
2020+auburn+st+s
St+petersburg, FL 33712

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lori Irushalmi
301 E 47th St Apt 15j
New York, NY 10017

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: LILLIE BRODERICK
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 3503 25 TH ST WEST
Zip: 33971

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcia Jackson

111 Long Acre Dr
Jacksonville, NC 28546

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Adams
16030 Nehru Ave Apt C
Baton Rouge, LA 70816

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Schultz
1775 Petrolia
W Bloomfield, MI 48324

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Renee Ekstrom
614+valley+view+way
Travis+afb, CA 94535

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Shelly Howard
257 Biltmore Ave
Elmont, NY 11003

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Wanette Thomas
445 E Cumberland St
Allentown, PA 18103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vicki Parker
116 Grenadine Ct
Martinsburg, WV 25404

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Cowells
4623 Kirkwood Dr
Sterling Hts, MI 48310

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sylvia Sutherland
6621+ferguson+rd
Ramseur, NC 27316

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Missy Adkins
11+redwood+manor+park
Pontiac, IL 61764

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Dillard
500 Rembrandt St
Mansfield, OH 44902

=====
From: Missy Fannon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Missy Fannon
1101 Grove St
Charles City, Iowa 50616

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Fernandez
8270 Halbrite Way
Sacramento, CA 95828

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michelle Dunbat
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 25 Rice Rd.
Zip: 28801

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Laurissa Salazar
30554 Orange St
Shafter, CA 93263

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissia Crockett
711 Hoppers Ln
Hvre De Grace, MD 21078

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Long
114 Skyline Dr
Ottumwa, IA 52501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Long
1111 S 7th Ave
Kelso, WA 98626

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear. The investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Merisa Cochrane
13400 Algonquin Rd
Apple Valley, CA 92308

=====
From: Missy Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Missy Smith
132 Willis Creek Rd
Warner Robins, Georgia 31088

=====

From: MISSY VALENTINE
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MISSY VALENTINE
4750 Spicewood St
Tuscaloosa, Alabama 35405

=====

From: Missy Woods
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Missy Woods
970 W 1150 S
Ladoga, Indiana 47954

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Scott Hickerson
1125 Parnell Ave
Turlock, CA 95380

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Burris
3720 Brentcove Dr
N Las Vegas, NV 89032

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency."
If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet.
If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Atiliai Satoafaiga
3756 N Mormon Flat Rd
Golden Valley, AZ 86413

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Evan Arnett
1125 Depot St
Mayfield, KY 42066

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Wesley Butler
5100 Quivira Rd
Shawnee Msn, KS 66216

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Erik Lawson
2973 Violet Dr
W Sacramento, CA 95691

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bobby Price
7 Ewingville Rd
Ewing, NJ 08638

=====
From: MISTER SHAW

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MISTER SHAW
10822 LONGSHADOW LANE
HUNTERS CREEK VILLAGE, Texas 77024

=====
From: Misti Alexander
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misti Alexander
132 College St # B
Chester, South Carolina 29706

=====
From: Misti Ott
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misti Ott
10984 Dixon Pines Cir
Machesney Park, Illinois 61115

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kristoffer Macabuag
1111 1st St
Kenai, AK 99611

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sharon Sadlowski
1826+grand+ave
Glenwood+spgs, CO 81601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Ilejay
5009 Pacifica Ave
Palmdale, CA 93552

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sarah Brownlee
927 Miller St
Augusta, GA 30901

=====
From: Misty Biggs
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Biggs
4119 S 33rd West Ave
Tulsa, Oklahoma 74107

=====

From: Misty Bise
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Bise

8736 N Rockwell Dr
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73132

=====
From: Misty Bolding
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Bolding
741 NE Nickernut Pl
Redmond, Oregon 97756

=====
From: Misty Cole
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Cole
8391 Angie Cir
Panama City, Florida 32404

=====
From: Misty Davidson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Davidson
2000 Rose Cir
Harker Heights, Texas 76548

=====
From: Misty Dawn
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Dawn
41299 Bayou Narcisse Rd
Gonzales, Louisiana 70737

=====
From: Misty Frye
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Frye
2711 Mayfield Dr
Talbott, Tennessee 37877

=====
From: Misty Gardenhire
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Gardenhire
19747 E 530 Rd
Colcord, Oklahoma 74338

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Sandra Jossa
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 3501 Rockhill Drive
Zip: 78645

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You

canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be
â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: Misty Griffin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Griffin
317 Euclid Ave
Michigan City, Indiana 46360

=====
From: Misty Hickman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Hickman
1905 Cambridge Dr Apt 02
Lexington, Kentucky 40504

=====
From: Misty Himes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Himes
328 Narrow Gap Rd
Paint Lick, Kentucky 40461

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
William Horton
1051 S Tabor Ave
North Platte, NE 69101

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Misty Jackson
2634 Shelby St
Bristol, TN 37620

=====
From: Misty Macken
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Macken
301 S Coolidge Ave
Stockton, California 95215

=====

From: Misty Morgan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Morgan
6490 S Cockrell Hill Rd Apt 2308
Dallas, Texas 75236

=====

From: Misty Oconnor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Oconnor
102 Hopkins Ave Apt A Bakersfield, California 93308

=====
From: misty owens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

misty owens
3028 38th St SW
Lehigh Acres, Florida 33976

=====
From: Misty Patterson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Patterson
813 Easter Dr
Madisonville, Tennessee 37354

=====
From: Misty Phillips
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Phillips
1004 Grandview Ave
Muscatine, Iowa 52761

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Misty Rackley
123 Yarbrow Rd
Kings Mtn, NC 28086

=====
From: Misty Ruger
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Ruger
1909 Crown Colony Dr
Prosper, Texas 75078

=====
From: Misty Russell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Russell
4301 Ivy Ave
Knoxville, Tennessee 37914

=====
From: misty Scott
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

misty Scott
1025 E 57th St
Tacoma, Washington 98404

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Misty Smith
1419+christine+rd

Wichita+falls, TX 76302

=====
From: misty thurmond
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

misty thurmond
588 Solitude Ave
Albertville, Alabama 35950

=====
From: Misty TiptonOwens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty TiptonOwens
7230 Mangrove Dr Lot 01
North Charleston, South Carolina 29418

=====

From: Misty Wallace
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Wallace
401 S Washington St
Farmersville, Texas 75442

=====

From: Misty Wilson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Misty Wilson
1002 S Oak Ave
Mineral Wells, Texas 76067

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sylphide Spencer
506+bell+dr
Danville, VA 24541

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -- investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monique Mitalovich
4108+rexford+dr
Saint+louis, MO 63125

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Tammy Johnson
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address:
Zip:

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitchell Baughman
3417 Miller Creek Rd
Knoxville, TN 37931

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: LARRY C MITCHELL
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 88005 Overseas Hwy 09
Zip: 33036

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitch Breneman
170 Retreat Ln
Westerville, OH 43082

=====
From: Mitchel Fritschle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mitchel Fritschle
1102 PIke St NE
Auburn, WA 98002

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mitchel Fritschle

=====
From: Mitchell Bentley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Bentley
8421 Rucker Rd
Grosse Ile, Michigan 48138

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Betty Mitchell
6355 Oakley Rd
Union City, GA 30291

=====
From: Mitchell Free
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Free
6440 Narramore Way
Lula, Georgia 30554

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeff Mitchell
115 Gardendale Rd
Terre Haute, IN 47803

=====
From: mitchell lai
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mitchell lai
31765 South West 197 Ave.
Homestead, Florida 33030

=====
From: Mitchell Lancman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mitchell Lancman

820 Montana Ave. W.
St. Paul, MN 55117

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mitchell Lancman

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitchel Loveless
305 E Clark Blvd
Murfreesboro, TN 37130

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cordell Mitchell
3508 W Wall St
Midland, TX 79701

=====
From: Mitchell Stevens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Stevens
202 Rolling Hills Pl
Lancaster, Texas 75146

=====
From: Mitchell Stonebraker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Stonebraker
1171 W Miracle Mile Apt A2
Tucson, Arizona 85705

=====
From: Mitchell White
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mitchell White
903 Cornelia Dr SE
Huntsville, AL 35802

=====
From: Mitchel Riddle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitchel Riddle
125 N County Road 900 E
Avon, Indiana 46123

=====
From: Mitch Finney
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mitch Finney
400 W Olive St
Lamar, CO 81052

=====
From: MITch Jenkins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MITch Jenkins
6203 Caminito Marcial
San Diego, California 92111

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitch Knodle
2204 6th Ave S Apt 19
Fargo, ND 58103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitch Mehringer
1918+w+indiana+st
Evansville, IN 47712

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitch Nash
813 Steenerson St Ne
Warroad, MN 56763

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitchell Triplitt
507 W Walnut Ave
Duncan, OK 73533

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitch Wilhite
6004 Lone Star Ct
Hutto, TX 78634

=====
From: Mitch Wright
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitch Wright
5801 NE 182nd St
Kenmore, Washington 98028

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Debbie Smith
701 Gentry Rd
Chattanooga, TN 37421

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Stewart
Po Box 45
Fulton, CA 95439

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monte Mittag
919 Meek Rd
Humble, TX 77338

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kristy Miller
12871 W 690 Rd
Hulbert, OK 74441

=====
From: Mitze Thomas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitze Thomas
1999 Wyatt Cir
Dover, Pennsylvania 17315

=====
From: Mitzi Burton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitzi Burton
1882 Happy Ln Apt 45
Eugene, Oregon 97401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Steinbach
4250 Barbaras Ct
Camino, CA 95709

=====
From: Mitzi Duncan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option" because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitzi Duncan
217 W Lee St
Zebulon, North Carolina 27597

=====
From: Mitzi Hill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mitzi Hill
5011 SW Pinemount Rd
Lake City, Florida 32024

=====
From: mitzi krasnoff
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mitzi krasnoff
4535 US Highway 92 E
Lakeland, Florida 33801

=====
From: miu jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years â\200\223 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Donâ\200\231t ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

miu jones
29 St Helens Ave Apt 207
Tacoma, Washington 98402

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milos Ivanis
35+arell+ct
Alexandria, VA 22304

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Greg Bailey
41 Bucks Hill Rd
Waterbury, CT 06704

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Daniel Chapman
Po Box 23574
Federal Way, WA 98093

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Caldwell
2403 Jenny Lind St
McKeesport, PA 15132

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Larry Mixson
1120 Condon St
Charlotte, NC 28216

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Glenford Flowers
18716 Seaforth St
Hesperia, CA 92345

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
John Yin
9600 Bellaire Blvd Ste 252
Houston, TX 77036

=====
From: Miya Greene
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miya Greene
PO Box 12144
Durham, North Carolina 27709

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Arthur Thorpe
14902 Giordano St
La Puente, CA 91744

=====
From: Mi Young Kim
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mi Young Kim
2721 Amherst Ridge Loop
South Chesterfield, Virginia 23834

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: sharon benton
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1130 east coke st
Zip: 76531

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melanie Graczyk
Po Box 1606
Buffalo, NY 14226

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jun Luo
1004 Carriage Hill Dr
Athens, OH 45701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Prince Sand
6706 Della St
Houston, TX 77093

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Shangra Garcia
103 E Van Wagenen St
Henderson, NV 89015

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Timeka Edwards
1512+w+mineral+st
Milwaukee, WI 53204

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tonya Jordan
634 Tappansee Ct
Virginia Bch, VA 23451

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tammy Jackson
4439+blueberry+ave
Dayton, OH 45406

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Portia Bagby
1104 S Pecan St
Clarksville, TX 75426

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael J Butkus
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 535 Avenue A
Zip: 07002

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Johnson
417+s+36th+ave
Hattiesburg, MS 39402

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jose Bautista
886 E 41st Pl
Los Angeles, CA 90011

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcus Jalomo
4316 Cockrell Ave
Fort Worth, TX 76133

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mehdi Jalali
5801 Rosewood Ct
Plano, TX 75093

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jenny Manzanares
Po Box 114
Iona, ID 83427

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marc Armolea
4164 Boulder Creek Cir
Stockton, CA 95219

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Jaksiel
28332 Powers St
Westland, MI 48186

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: marcia benson
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Address: 237 brookhill dr
Zip: 38583

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marsha Bland
Po Box 252
Oakwood, OH 45873

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Caruso
23542 S Center Rd
Frankfort, IL 60423

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mel Carter
9349 3rd Ave Se
Olympia, WA 98513

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Collins
151 Crowder Home Rd
Reidsville, NC 27320

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Corneloup
246 S Cypress St
Orange, CA 92866

=====
From: xxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael DiFranco
429 Brittany Rd
Seaside, CA 93955

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers - just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Dittman
7933+wainwright+ln
Maineville, OH 45039

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Goyette
1969 Boardwalk Ave

Prescott, AZ 86301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Morgan
21 Appleman Rd
Somerset, NJ 08873

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along --â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeanne Morgan
6368 Stone Park Cv
Memphis, TN 38141

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Edens
414 Bonnieview Dr
Valrico, FL 33594

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Ferraro
605+e+spruce+st
Sault+s+marie, MI 49783

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Groleau
412+s+28th+st
Escanaba, MI 49829

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Gruber
5830 W 201st St
Stilwell, KS 66085

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Heneks
337 N Lyle Ave
Elgin, IL 60123

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Malvin Harris
621 Orchard St
Savannah, GA 31405

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Jill Dunmire
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 3518 Fieldstone Dr.
Zip: 15120

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Johnston
2006 Wyoming Ave
Superior, WI 54880

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maryjane Krantz
629 Belland Ave
Saint Paul, MN 55127

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Kalamon
943 Township Line Rd

Phoenixville, PA 19460

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Jane Klein
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 68 W. Grant St.
Zip: 44601

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be a slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mickey Glennan
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1458 n maplewood ave #03
Zip: 60622

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Jacobs
17001 Morgan Cir
Laurinburg, NC 28352

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Judy Roybal
454+realwind+dr
Fort+sumner, NM 88119

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: MaryJane Smith
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 139 Reiffs Mill Rd Ambler PA
Zip: 19002

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Johnson
1703+e+lark+st
Springfield, MO 65804

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melvin Beasha
15501 Williams St Apt M1
Tustin, CA 92780

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marlene Jones
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: P.O. Box 2488
Zip: 98632

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Ormonde
545+s+7th+st+apt+12
San+jose, CA 95112

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Osmun
38 Wadsworth St
North Haven, CT 06473

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Joyner-harris
395 E Beal St
Highland Spgs, VA 23075

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Brady
8551+california+ave
Whittier, CA 90605

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitch Rivera
1121 W 22nd St
Los Angeles, CA 90007

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marijo Rosegrant
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1983 Hanley Rd Apt 223
Zip: 63368

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Schaefer
640+e+pioneer+trl
Aurora, OH 44202

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Seitz
3063 Paseo Mountain Ave
Henderson, NV 89052

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Sims
17313 Chase St
Northridge, CA 91325

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Johnstone
10875 Squawbush Loop
Peyton, CO 80831

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuel Solis
18489+santa+ana+ave
Bloomington, CA 92316

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Â¿â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Â¿â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mj Jay
1173 Willow Glen Way
San Jose, CA 95125

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Zialcita
1687 Hill Dr
Los Angeles, CA 90041

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jay Kahren
8401 Randal Dr
Navarre, FL 32566
=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Allen
11000 Old Highway 61 S
Dundee, MS 38626

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Allen
20222 E Ash Creek Rd
Mayer, AZ 86333

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Min Kang
13075 Gladstone Ave
Sylmar, CA 91342

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Kanute

471 Memory Ln
Hayden, AL 35079

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Browder
2878 Boatmans Mountain Rd
Morristown, TN 37814

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Huff
7955+E+49th+St
Indianapolis, IN 46226

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Cloud
201 Comanche Dr
Comanche, OK 73529

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Davis
3020 Falcon Bridge Dr
Columbus, OH 43232

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Espinoza
33747+15th+st
Union+city, CA 94587

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kelly
12800 Ponderosa Ranch Rd
Victorville, CA 92392

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kim Kendall
3218 Benrus Ct
Pearland, TX 77584

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Wilhelm
1041+w+king+st
Decatur, IL 62522

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Kabel
3115 Diamond Hollow Ct
Katy, TX 77450

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Finck
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: no
Zip: 11111

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Kathy Fryslie
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 216 Hardin St.
Zip: 50601

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amanda Bednarik
856 N Central Dr
Lorain, OH 44052

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kirk Guldbeck
12418+W+84th+Dr
Arvada, CO 80005

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melanie Illes
115 Kellogg Ln
Jacksonville, NC 28540

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Kilpatrick
1512 Zarker Rd
Lancaster, PA 17601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Kinaman
9029 7th Pl W
Everett, WA 98204

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Kindred
800 Franklin Ave
Fremont, OH 43420

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kirkland
2419 Tamjo Dr
Maryville, TN 37801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Joseph
3134 Asbury Sq
Atlanta, GA 30346

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Peterson
595 Summit Dr
Pinole, CA 94564

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marjorie Koczka
389 Lake Rd
Andover, CT 06232

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark R Korpela
17 Caveswood Ln
Owings Mills, MD 21117

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Koskie
10671 Lehigh Rd S
Hastings, MN 55033

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mili Smith
411 Avenue F Ne
Childress, TX 79201

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mathew Kunjukunju
33+3rd+ave
Piscataway, NJ 08854

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Margaret Pofahl
N71w35536 Mapleton Lake Dr
Oconomowoc, WI 53066

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Renfro
11718 12th Ave Ne
Seattle, WA 98125

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Robinson
105 Chestnut Ave Se
Saint Michael, MN 55376

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Kroh
1111 E Webster St
Coal Township, PA 17866

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rich Kryk
3116 S Canal Dr
Palm Harbor, FL 34684

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Schmarder
46 Camden Ave
Buffalo, NY 14216

=====
From: M.K. Sikes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

M.K. Sikes
10395 So. Oaks Dr.
Saraland, Alabama 36571

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Smith
7265+antelope+meadows+cir
Peyton, CO 80831

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Stine
927 Emery Rd Apt A202

Lawrence, KS 66044

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Micheal Scott
402 N Elm Ave
Erwin, TN 37650

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Yavonne Oneal
36 Edgewater Dr
Mastic Beach, NY 11951

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mel Lee
65+greenview+ln
El+sobranate, CA 94803

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Winsor
21983 Miller St
Chillicothe, MO 64601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Lambo
14 Beacon Park
Watertown, MA 02472

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet.

If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Laplume
4 Cedar Ct Apt B2
Franklin, NH 03235

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Laporte
1925 Thomson Rd
Niles, MI 49120

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Scott Latham
1708+woods+dr
Metairie, LA 70001

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Lavook
18 S 22nd St
Kenilworth, NJ 07033

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Margaret Lawe
Po Box 695013
Miami, FL 33269

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lisa Bossler
2935 W Capriana Dr
Meridian, ID 83646

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myron Crawford
po+box+3684
Tupelo, MS 38803

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Lopez
208 W Elm St
Compton, CA 90220

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Corn
7044 Pershing Ave
Saint Louis, MO 63130

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marshall Dunn
911+s+rosa+linda+dr
Pueblo+west, CO 81007

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Dixon
1073 Priestford Rd
Street, MD 21154

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marsha Diedrich
1208+raceland+ave
Russell, KY 41169

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Jopp
701 Meadow Ln
Greenfield, IN 46140

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melody Gomez

441 Park Shadow Ct
Baldwin Park, CA 91706

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Lee England
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 64640 E. 253 Ln.
Zip: 74344

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Burt Ewing
1105 E Highland Rd
Red Oak, TX 75154

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Lou Faherty
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: So Filbert Way
Zip: 80222

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christopher Fields
673 Old Blairs Gap Rd
Kingsport, TN 37660

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myron Foster
1900 Roberts St
Kilgore, TX 75662

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Gibbons

1903 Maplewood Trl
Colleyville, TX 76034

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Melissa holder
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 121 sylvan oak way
Zip: 29681

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael l Haggerty
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1002 Samuel St, # 21 pocatello , Id.
Zip: 83204

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Herman
Po Box 3373
Waquoit, MA 02536

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Lindsay
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1212 Highway 55
Zip: 55340

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marc Lipsher
12937 Sandpoint Ct
Fort Myers, FL 33919

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nicole Delauder
2104 Hampstead Dr N
Columbus, OH 43229

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job \202-\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service \202-\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Livesey1
1025 Viewpointe Ln
Corona, CA 92881

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Jones
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1219 Kachina Dr.
Zip: 80915

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Jones
3701 2nd St Trlr 2c
Coralville, IA 52241

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: MARYLEE KILLINGER
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 36576 Shelby court
Zip: 99611

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Marshall
32+n+61st+st
Philadelphia, PA 19139

=====
From: M. L. McKean
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

M. L. McKean
2400 Water's Edge Drive
Granbury, Texas 76048

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
M. Loesch
3750 Sweepstakes Ct Apt 2108
Palm Harbor, FL 34684

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Lorcher
3116 Swallow Ln
Las Vegas, NV 89121

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Owen
25496 Cheryle St
Barstow, CA 92311

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Abraham Lowinger
12 Zenta Rd Unit 202
Monroe, NY 10950

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Linda Paavola
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 39005 325th Ave
Zip: 56352

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Peltó
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 32 Wildcat Dr
Zip: 28704

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Melanie Williamson
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address:
Zip:

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Ruiz
230+whispering+oaks+st
Live+oak, TX 78233

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marla Raymos
16126+33rd+ave
Clearlake, CA 95422

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Earl Sappington
463 Westfield Blvd Apt 611
Temple, TX 76502

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Russell
3023 E Baldwin Ave
Spokane, WA 99207

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Billy Saucedo
8723 Coffee Dr
San Antonio, TX 78221

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marion Schurter
Po Box 69 Box 69
Rosewood, OH 43070

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Seifert
3756+gum+tree+gln
Escondido, CA 92025

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myri Stokes
3508 Hanna Dr
Memphis, TN 38128

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Strandness
25091+jaguar+loop
Underwood, IA 51576

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Tatum
1570 Lakewood Dr
Columbia, MO 65202

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Lumabao
Po Box 690226
Makaweli, HI 96769

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Caperton
11114 Nw 16th Ave

Vancouver, WA 98685

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Paul Melvin
1950 Mule Deer Trl
Chino Valley, AZ 86323

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: marlena wickens
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2455 yavapai st
Zip: 86323

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marilee Watson
1123+w+delphi+ave
Marion, IN 46952

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michelle Rhinehart
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 2826 North Hills Blvd
Zip: 37917

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mao
2444 E 5th St Apt 01
Long Beach, CA 90814

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Mackinnon
930 S Lincoln St Lot 22
Ottawa, KS 66067

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Matt Maden
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 2507 Monterey Ct.
Zip: 92274

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Marseglia
5965+Bay+Point+Rd
Bokeelia, FL 33922

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Basil Marasco
26 Wills Rd
Rochester, NY 14624

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mathew Masorti
5 Quiggle Ave
Lock Haven, PA 17745

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Max Reyes
1005 Nw 2nd St
Hamlin, TX 79520

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Bowman
4618 Jefferson St
Deer Park, TX 77536

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maria Margarita Carbajal
24069+doover+ln
Hayward, CA 94541

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Margaret Mccluskey
7 Castle Grn Unit 07
Marshfield, MA 02050

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: DONNA MCCAPES
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 10927 MAGNA LN

Zip: 92040

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Mccarthy
8 Elm St
Tyngsboro, MA 01879

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Monte McCraw
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 475 Worlds Edge Rd
Zip: 28792

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws

arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Mclord
762 Hancock St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Cuyler
2816+nw+77th+st
Seattle, WA 98117

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Duncan
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 13275 Birch Rd
Zip: 43076

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marvin Melchert
4840 Edgewood Ave N
Crystal, MN 55428

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Menio
1900 Easton Ave
Bethlehem, PA 18017

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marla Mercowski
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 98 Juniper Way
Zip: 28801

Dear Chairman Wheeler, don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers -- just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Metzgas
2504 Stratford St
Eugene, OR 97404

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Meyer
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 09 County Rd
Zip: 03902

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Courey
807 Jackson Ln
Liberty Twp, OH 45044

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Garcia
3 Jocelyn Ct
Aliso Viejo, CA 92656

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jason Hill
14365+mecca+rd
Fr+settlement, LA 70733

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Midia Michael
7134 N Kilpatrick Ave
Lincolnwood, IL 60712

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Fuller
563 Dutchman Ave
Henderson, NV 89011

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Milton
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 316 robin lane
Zip: 13850

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have "just enough Title II" any more than you can be "slightly pregnant."

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear "202-" investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Minnich
8+stonebridge+apartments
Elizabethtown, PA 17022

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manny Miranda
101 Central Ave
Patchogue, NY 11772

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Brasher
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 5480 Hwy, 51 S,
Zip: 38632

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation—just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcie Keck
Po Box 1076
Corcoran, CA 93212

To whom it may concern:

Thank you.Â

Matthew Kimball

[illegible]

Name: Mary Kelley
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 7223 Westport Court
Zip: 31820

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have "just enough Title II" any more than you can be "slightly pregnant."

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marilyn
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 4525 W. Twain Ave
Zip: 89103

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Guzman

3500 Sun Bowl Dr Apt 77
El Paso, TX 79902

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
David Smith
338 Peretz Cir
Morristown, AZ 85342

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohamed Mohamed
141 Summit St
Newark, NJ 07103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kirk Finney
387 Northridge Dr
Pontotoc, MS 38863

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Moloian
15412 Golden Lantern Ln
La Mirada, CA 90638

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohammad Momani
433+w+canedy+st
Jerome, IL 62704

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marlene Moore
2062 Wire Rd
Thomson, GA 30824

=====
From: M. Morales
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Network Neutrality

The current open model of the Internet, without fast lanes and slow lanes based on business deals by broadband providers, is how it should REMAIN!

Kind regards,

Papi Shank a.k.a. CAPITAL (MR. RMX)
The Urban Latin Pop Sensation
"Rapper/Singer/Producer/Model"

xxxx@xxxx.xxx
HYPERLINK "http://www.PapiShank.com"www.PapiShank.com
HYPERLINK "mailto: xxxx@xxxx.xxx" xxxx@xxxx.xxx
-

C.E.O. of L.E.S.G.O. Ent.
"Where Music has NO Limits"

HYPERLINK "http://www.LESGO.biz"www.LESGO.biz
(646) 53-LESG-00
HYPERLINK "mailto: xxxx@xxxx.xxx" xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuel Morales
6900+ancient+oak+ln
Charlotte, NC 28277

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcy Renzi
2489 Sunny Vista Dr
San Jose, CA 95128

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kielinen
8782 E La Palma Dr
Tucson, AZ 85747

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marilyn Wayte
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 906 GRANT ST APT 111
Zip: 76301

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard

called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melvin Tarpley
519+wendover+way
Grovetown, GA 30813

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Mueller
404+White+Chapel+Dr
O+Fallon, MO 63368

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Margaret Vivirito
4687 Grand Ave
Montclair, CA 91763

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melessia Woods
3102 Biggers Reyno Rd
Biggers, AR 72413

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ann Schimek
4703 13th Ave Nw
Rochester, MN 55901

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Allen Cauble
7032 20th Ave Se
Lacey, WA 98503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Olguin
26648+chambers+ave
Sun+city, CA 92586

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Nelson
4113 W 13th St
Yuma, AZ 85364

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Nichols
1991 Cobblestone Dr
Carpentersvle, IL 60110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Nikiforos
9001+major+ave
Morton+grove, IL 60053

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Nisito
2731+Erringer+Rd+Apt+56
Simi+Valley, CA 93065

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Katie Milburn
1829 Ne Fairview Ave
Grants Pass, OR 97526

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lori Mason Namba
105 Se 175th Ave
Vancouver, WA 98683

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dm White
922+e+village+cir+se
Rochester, MN 55904

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Louis Noble
721+dell+ct
Southampton, PA 18966

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mariana Ortiz
436 Paseo Flamenco
Rio Rico, AZ 85648

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Jackson Norris
3619 Old Stage Rd S
Erwin, NC 28339

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ed Sumstine
8729+iden+ave+s
Cottage+grove, MN 55016

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marc Smith
3237 Dodd Ln
Eagan, MN 55121

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuel De J. Nunez Lavado
8812 Square Knot Ave
Las Vegas, NV 89143

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohamed Mostafa
1728 Swan Loop E
Upland, CA 91784

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mori James
263 W Woodcrest St
Rialto, CA 92376

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Oliver
8201 Tanager Ln
Indianapolis, IN 46256

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moses Bates
2301 Chestnut St
Philadelphia, PA 19103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Maider
256+first+parish+rd
Scituate, MA 02066

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maurice Brown
204 W Pearl St
Mt Pleasant, IA 52641

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Adrienne Wright
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1208 Greenwood Av
Zip: 45011

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myeisha Harmon
Po Box 3024
Hinsdale, IL 60522

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Karen-Jean. Coxe
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address:
Zip: 95842

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Jo Ann Boutwell
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 425 John B. Logan Rd. Samson, Alabama
Zip: 36477

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You

canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be
â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: maureen colebrook
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1801 US HWY 01
Zip: 33477

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Modica Jr
684+s+delaware+dr
Mount+bethel, PA 18343

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kelvin See
800+w+commonwealth+ave+apt+c
Alhambra, CA 91801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eugene Majewski
128 Seneca Dr

Old Forge, PA 18518

=====
From: Modesto Madrid
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Modesto Madrid
815 Burgundy Dr Apt 128
El Paso, Texas 79907

=====
From: modesto martinez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

modesto martinez
PO Box 40823
Downey, California 90239

=====
From: modjeska sims
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

modjeska sims
2508 Whitson Way
Mesquite, Texas 75150

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: madeline owen
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address:
Zip: 27587

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bob Vance
12 San Patricio
Rcho Sta Marg, CA 92688

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morris Drummer
308 Royal Oak Dr
Steger, IL 60475

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dennis Meley
6150 S South Arrow
Tucson, AZ 85757

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moe Amparom
1128 Olivewood Dr
Merced, CA 95348

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chiquita Smith
2031 W Galena St
Milwaukee, WI 53205

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marvin Flynn
609 Glide St
Rochester, NY 14606

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Winningham
2512 Freehill Rd
Cookeville, TN 38501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moses Davis
2144+lakeshore+dr+apt+27d
Ridgeland, MS 39157

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Keith Schuster
60108+s+hatley+rd
Amory, MS 38821

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

David Allen
3005 Eureka St # B
Anchorage, AK 99503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dwayne Jones
2008 Ramsay St
Baltimore, MD 21223

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moses Gonzales
8114 True Ave
Pico Rivera, CA 90660

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Morris
327 Quay Ln
Redwood City, CA 94065

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers 202-234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Narvaez
3367 Daisy Ave
Long Beach, CA 90806

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sherman Mcgough
782 Rock Creek Rd
Glenwood, AR 71943

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Donna Slavin
240 Surrey Hill Way
Rochester, NY 14623

=====
From: Mohamad Jahanbani
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohamad Jahanbani
15524 Whistling Straits Dr

Austin, Texas 78717

=====
From: Mohamed Banya
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohamed Banya
9988 E Alabama Dr Apt 1615
Aurora, Colorado 80247

=====
From: Mohamed Maksoud
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohamed Maksoud
62 Dewitt Ave
Belleville, New Jersey 07109

=====
From: mohamed shaffee
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mohamed shaffee
8650 77th St Apt 2B
Woodhaven, New York 11421

=====
From: Mohamed Zahr
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohamed Zahr
6428 Steadman St
Dearborn, Michigan 48126

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohammad Ali
2850 37th St Apt 1a
Astoria, NY 11103

=====
From: Mohammad Mohebi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Mohebi
2550 California St
San Francisco, California 94115

=====
From: Mohammad Roshandel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Roshandel
12923 NE 29th St
Bellevue, Washington 98005

=====
From: Mohammed Adebayo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohammed Adebayo
321 Mesquite Ct
Murphy, Texas 75094

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years - that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ho Kii
1105 E Spring Valley Rd
Richardson, TX 75081

=====
From: mohammed vuntley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mohammed vuntley
2441 Piering Dr
Lithonia, Georgia 30038

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohan Krishna Rachabathuni
39800 Fremont Blvd Apt 515
Fremont, CA 94538

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Scott Bynum
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 8103 E Southern Ave #190
Zip: 85209

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard

called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joshua Harris
416 Brewer Ave
Akron, OH 44305

=====

From: Mohd Jafri
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohd Jafri
22790 Harper Ave Ste A
Saint Clair Shores, Michigan 48080

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Juan Lozano
8401 Pan American Fwy Ne Unit 309
Albuquerque, NM 87113
=====

From: mohsen badawy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mohsen badawy
2562 Steinway St Apt 3R
Astoria, New York 11103

=====
From: Mohsen Moafi Kalurazi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -- investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mohsen Moafi Kalurazi
961 S 74th Ter
Kansas City, Kansas 66111

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark McMaster
737 Anthony Rd
Indiana, PA 15701

=====
From: Moira Iocona
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moira Iocona
154 Lawrence Rd
Stokesdale, North Carolina 27357

=====
From: Moira Mathis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moira Mathis
6398 Mount Ripley Dr
Cypress, California 90630

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moises Garibay
3926+01/02+8th+ave
San+diego, CA 92103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moises Castro
8012 7th St Apt 16

Buena Park, CA 90621

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Peter Lim
2514 Piedmont Ave Apt 301
Berkeley, CA 94704

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job ã\202-ã\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service ã\202-ã\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Anthony Mojica
5921 Crestmoor Dr
Paradise, CA 95969

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Smith
436 Reed St
Mansfield, OH 44903

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morgan Kennedy
33+sandalwood+ct
San+rafael, CA 94903

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tomoko Lawton
17335 Chateau Pine Way
Clermont, FL 34711

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Meg Oldman
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Indiana, PA
Zip: 15701

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: molene Mackey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

molene Mackey
4356 N 62nd St
Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53216

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Molinero
117 77th St
North Bergen, NJ 07047

=====
From: molini mataele

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

molini mataele
9139 Rothsay Way
Sacramento, California 95829

=====
From: Molley Mahaffey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molley Mahaffey
1077 Carey Hill Rd
Montoursville, Pennsylvania 17754

=====
From: Mollie
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Access to the internet

Open, unrestricted access is vitally important in all realms of communication be it business, education or pleasure. At 87 years of age and with somewhat restricted ambulatory ability it keeps the world open to me. Please consider all options. Sincerely, Mollie Fitzsimons

Â _____ Â

HYPERLINK "http://www.avast.com/" This email is free from viruses and malware because HYPERLINK "http://www.avast.com/"avast! Antivirus protection is active.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Molly Bolger-jenssen

829+bryn+mawr+ave
Penn+valley, PA 19072

=====
From: Mollie Dyer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mollie Dyer
3931 S Norfolk Ave Apt 06
Tulsa, Oklahoma 74105

=====
From: Mollie Karle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mollie Karle
139 Hazelhurst Ave 62969911
North Syracuse, New York 13212

=====

From: Mollie Koontz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mollie Koontz
66 Tanbark Ct
Goose Creek, South Carolina 29445

=====

From: Mollie Straub
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

I worked for Digital Equipment Corporation. We had a company network way before anyone else knew what a network was. It was how I got my work done. It was how I met my husband. It was a huge part of my life. Now, the internet spans the world, not just my company. It is still how I run my life, from shopping to banking to keeping in touch with friends and family. It would be unfair to allow only those who pay to enjoy the ability to have a fast, workable network. We need net neutrality. It is what is fair and just.

Mollie Straub

04459

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Isaias Lopez
908 Franklin St
Reading, PA 19602

=====
From: Molly Boll
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Boll
12534 230th Pl NE
Redmond, Washington 98053

=====
From: Molly Brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Brown
104 Prince Ct
Warner Robins, Georgia 31093

=====
From: Molly Brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Molly Brown
101 Oyster Bay Ct Unit A5
Cary, NC 27513-3218

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Molly Vinson
137 Kendall Rd

Walnut Creek, CA 94595

=====
From: Molly Chano
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Chano
57 Third Circle Dr
Wichita Falls, Texas 76306

=====
From: Molly Hardy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Hardy
7445 W 3500 S
Magna, Utah 84044

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx-k12.net
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Molly Hutches
305 W 18th St
Dumas, TX 79029

=====
From: Molly Kaveney
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Kaveney
608 S Florence Ave
Bloomington, Illinois 61701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Erin Mcmillen
524 Bluebird Canyon Dr
Laguna Beach, CA 92651

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Molly Metz
628+w+oak+st
Lafayette, CO 80026

=====
From: Molly Nolan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Nolan
435 Woodland Dr Apt A
Florence, South Carolina 29501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Anthony Potter
4660 N River Rd Spc 135
Oceanside, CA 92057

=====
From: Molly Rice
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Molly Rice
300 4th Street
Saint Paul, MN 55101

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\235s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Molly Rice

=====
From: Molly Whitt
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molly Whitt
1123 Ardsley Rd
Charlotte, North Carolina 28207

=====
From: Molten Squire
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Molten Squire
1704 Atlantic Ave
Kingman, Arizona 86401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuel Olvera Jr
3601 Choctaw Dr
La Porte, TX 77571

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Erica Whitelock
710 S Norwood Ave
Tulsa, OK 74112

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tina Fenton
64 Sheldrake Rd
Au Sable Frks, NY 12912

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rosalba Zesati
1812 Bridge St
Los Angeles, CA 90033

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Deborah Starr
179+old+cement+rd+lot+a3
Montoursville, PA 17754

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marguerite Shepperson
1421 Larch Rd
Severn, MD 21144

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Molly
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 5460 sidehill dr
Zip: 89433

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Petra Nickerson
122 Oxford Rd
Savannah, GA 31419

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Charlotte Sachs
4946+malibu+ct
Lakeland, FL 33811

=====
From: momma- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Patricia Baumann
Email: momma- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: po box 968
Zip: 23418

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Margaret Steves
12b+fredella+ave
Glens+falls, NY 12801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martha Robis
25105 Fir Ave Apt 105
Moreno Valley, CA 92553

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Teresa Andrews
615+n+4th+st
Clinton, OK 73601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Alishia Johnson
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 821 Norman ct
Zip: 32750

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws

arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Barbara Gibson
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 118 Wing road Murray ky
Zip: 42071

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224

whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marjorie Merchant
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 207 W. Ridgewood Ct.
Zip: 32779

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dale Matson
14541 S Camino Larga Vis
Sahuarita, AZ 85629

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Charlotte Vanderpool
825 Sw 62nd St
Des Moines, IA 50312

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: carol hall
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 344 fairway drive
Zip: 65708

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Guy Brown
14231 Lawrence 2140
Mount Vernon, MO 65712

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Renee R. Allen
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 504 Garrettson Street
Zip: 66839

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t

buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Fredrickson

342+dupont+st
Long+lake, MN 55356

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kim Bucklew
1609 Mahoning Ave Apt 01
Youngstown, OH 44509

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Thelma Scott
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Airway Heights, WA
Zip: 99001

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You

canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be
â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Martinez
6485 Upper 48th St N
Oakdale, MN 55128

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuela Silber
447 Plymouth Pl Ne
Warren, OH 44483

=====
From: Mona Addley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless

Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mona Addley
3420 Rachel Ct
Loomis, California 95650

=====
From: mona cole
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mona cole
101 Babb Dr Unit 2205
Dover, Delaware 19901

=====
From: Monae Thomas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monae Thomas
7 Harpers Pl
Bear, Delaware 19701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mona Hamedani
3731 Cosley St
Irvine, CA 92614

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Glenn F Monahan
179 Hedges Pond Rd
Plymouth, MA 02360

=====
From: Monalissa Martinez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monalissa Martinez
2206 Old Uvalde Hwy Trlr 04
Crystal City, Texas 78839

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monika Limmer
2424 Middle River Dr
Ft Lauderdale, FL 33305

=====
From: mona peters
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mona peters
PO Box 126
Holyoke, Massachusetts 01041

=====
From: Mona Riggsbee
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mona Riggsbee
3702 Turrentine St
Durham, North Carolina 27704

=====
From: Mona Stardragon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mona Stardragon
421 Almondtree Cir
Oakley, CA 94561

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Bonnie Moncada
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 2214 Irving Rd
Zip: 24174

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Arnold S Mondragon
5111 W Paradise Ln
Glendale, AZ 85306

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tom Mondragon
625 Clinton Dr
Stockton, CA 95210

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael O'Neal
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2700 University Blvd.
Zip: 32217

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition.

Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Monell
1308 N De Leon St
Victoria, TX 77901

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ramon Ramirez
737 Frazier Ave
Santa Rosa, CA 95404

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monesia Woodson
696 Jackson Ave
Memphis, TN 38105

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monet Alexander
933 Honeywood Pl
Essex, MD 21221

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Justin White
2111+beverly+dr
Montgomery, AL 36111

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eric Borden
5608 Longview Rd
Sumter, SC 29154

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christopher Simmons
3974 Annistown Rd Ste 503
Snellville, GA 30039

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Anthony Alexander
714 Sims St
Minden, LA 71055

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Willis Williams
4518 E Howell St
Philadelphia, PA 19135

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Antonio Randle
4205 E 39th St
Kansas City, MO 64128

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joseph Cornish
723 67th St
San Diego, CA 92114

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Al Austin
14199 Rachel St
Hesperia, CA 92345

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Barron Mcmillian
10925b Muscadine Ln
N Little Rock, AR 72118

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Monroy
15350 Archwood St
Van Nuys, CA 91406

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Bradburn
20316 Wayzata Ct
Pflugerville, TX 78660

=====
From: Monica Acob
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Acob
5916 E Manslick Rd
Louisville, Kentucky 40219

=====
From: Monica Altman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Altman
207 Callie Coats Ln
Angier, North Carolina 27501

=====
From: Monica Bert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Bert
2219 NW Hoover Ave Apt C
Lawton, Oklahoma 73505

=====
From: Monica Black

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Monica Black
1012 35th Avenue Ln NE
Hickory, NC 28601-9601

=====
From: Monica Bobadilla
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Please maintain an Open Internet

Dear FCC:

Â

Please safeguard the internet for all users.Â

I believe that the current open model of the Internet, without fast lanes & slow lanes based on business deals by broadband providers, is important.Â

The principle of net neutrality is critical for the Internet of today & for the future.

Â

Thank you very much for seeking public opinion on this issue.

Monica S. Cavarra, California

Â

=====
From: Monica Cole
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Cole
214 Kenmore Dr
Danville, Virginia 24541

=====
From: Monica Cruz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Cruz
11302 Heatherwood Dr
Houston, Texas 77076

=====
From: Monica Cruz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Cruz
808 W 4th St
Del Rio, Texas 78840

=====
From: Monica Donnelly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Donnelly
16401 W Monterey Way
Goodyear, Arizona 85395

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Raquel Bass
100 Bicentennial Cir Apt 36
Sacramento, CA 95826

=====
From: Monica Fernandez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Fernandez
920 Azalea Ave
Placentia, California 92870

=====
From: Monica Fulton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Fulton
30511 Blue Bird Ln
Girard, Illinois 62640

=====
From: Monicagabrielarazo Razo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monicagabrielarazo Razo
1032 Jordan Rd
Dacula, Georgia 30019

=====
From: Monica Goulbourne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Goulbourne
301 Berkshire Ave
Paterson, New Jersey 07502

=====
From: Monica Groesbeck
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Monica Groesbeck
3228 NW 35th Pl
Oklahoma City, OK 73112

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Monica Groesbeck

=====

From: monica guffey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monica guffey
9 Still Spring Ct
Saint Charles, Missouri 63304

=====
From: Monica Harris
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Harris
9550 N Wayside Dr Apt 1204
Houston, Texas 77028

=====
From: monica Hill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monica Hill
3114 Lexington Dr
Saginaw, Michigan 48601

=====
From: Monica Hippen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Hippen
620 Oregon Ave
Benson, Minnesota 56215

=====
From: Monica Hippert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Hippert
587 State Route 44 55
Highland, New York 12528

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Holden
600 Claudell Ln Apt 202
Columbia, MO 65203

=====
From: Monica Holmes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Holmes
106 S Chestnut St
Forney, Texas 75126

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Huff
1537 W Center St Apt 160
Manteca, CA 95337

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Sims
1696 Kelly Blvd
Springfield, OR 97477

=====
From: Monica Jacobs
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:

â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Jacobs
100 Glen Falls Ln Apt 103
Durham, North Carolina 27713

=====
From: Monica Jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Jones

, 84062

=====
From: Monica Junkar
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Junkar
3150 Beacon Grove St
Spring, Texas 77389

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Monica Schafer
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 53545
Zip: 53545

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Monica Keady
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Monica Keady
3 Hillside Ct
Darien, CT 06820-5016

=====
From: Monica Kimball
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Monica Kimball
163 L St
Salt Lake Cty, UT 84103-3461

=====
From: Monica Koshivas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Koshivas
600 Willow St
Bennett, Iowa 52721

=====
From: Monica Lindquist-Cain
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Lindquist-Cain
14510 272nd Pl NE
Duvall, Washington 98019

=====
From: Monica Maltese
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Maltese
1208 Madison Ct
Jacksonville, North Carolina 28546

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Pruitt
316 Cedar Hill Dr
Pearl, MS 39208

=====
From: Monica Morales
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Morales
7608 Kelly Cir
Mission, Texas 78574

=====

From: Monica Noy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net Neutrality is Vital to Protect Women's & Girls' Voices Online

Already, major media's structural inequality continually leaves women out. The internet is one of the few places where independent media can thrive, providing a place for all women to tell our stories in our words on our own terms, uncensored and controlled by no one. The proposed FCC rules for a misleadingly-named "Open Internet" would not only threaten our free and easy access to these ways of making ourselves heard, by extension they would also give ISPs power to control and censor our speech -- my speech -- online.

And the threat is twofold: we use the web to organize and fight for change outside of it. The internet allows us to spread messages farther than our feet could take us, make ideas louder than our voices can shout, and stand together on the same ground though we are miles apart. But our access to the internet and the tools it offers is provided by big cable companies. In the fight for media justice, we are at risk of the very people we fight against having authority over the tools we use to fight them. Silencing dissenting voices will be easier than ever -- and legal -- under these proposed rules.

Justice for women in its many forms is dependent on the ability to share information, ideas, and experiences freely. These proposed rules are a direct threat to my ability to be heard and to hear from the people I need to hear from. More importantly, they are a direct threat to women's voices the world over. It is for these reasons that I strongly urge you not to pass these rules, and instead adopt rules and regulations that classify the Internet as a telecommunications service, which will preserve a truly open and equal internet for everyone.

Monica Noy
738 Spadina Ave
Toronto, ON M5S 2J8

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Ponce
609 W 79th St
Los Angeles, CA 90044

=====
From: Monica Prejean
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Prejean
12510 Wildwood Way
Abbeville, Louisiana 70510

=====
From: Monica Rubio
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Rubio
228 N 22nd St
Kansas City, Kansas 66102

=====
From: Monica Shelton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica Shelton
PO Box 9212
Jonesboro, Arkansas 72403

=====
From: monica tichauer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monica tichauer
2 Quail Run
Homosassa, Florida 34446

=====
From: Monica trevino
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monica trevino
1136 Radio Ln Apt 506
Rosenberg, Texas 77471

=====
From: monica woody
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

monica woody

viroqua, WI 54665

=====
From: Monic Honiker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monic Honiker
2806 Teakwood Ct Apt C
Winston Salem, North Carolina 27106

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Willis Mitchell
3317 Sungate Dr
Killeen, TX 76549

=====
From: Monie Alexander
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monie Alexander
1650 Shelby Dr
Gadsden, Alabama 35907

=====
From: monifa mills
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monifa mills
625 Kennedy Ct Apt D

Fairfield, California 94533

=====
From: Monika Arora
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monika Arora
47726 Ansel Ct
Fremont, California 94539

=====
From: Monika Dove
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monika Dove
2235 S Partridge Cir
Hopkins, South Carolina 29061

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monika Kaufman
1640 Dorchester Pl
Colorado Spgs, CO 80905

=====
From: Monika Morris
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monika Morris
252 Oceanliner Dr
Winder, Georgia 30680

=====
From: Monika Rose
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCCâ\200\231s attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monika Rose
625 Quartzite Cir
Winchester, Virginia 22601
=====

From: monik mills
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monik mills
2767 NW 4th St
Pompano Beach, Florida 33069

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica James
1936 N Governor Williams Hwy
Darlington, SC 29540

=====
From: Moniqua Burton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moniqua Burton
7656 S Coleville St
Tucson, Arizona 85746

=====
From: Moniqua Burton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moniqua Burton
7656 S Coleville St
Tucson, Arizona 85746

=====
From: Monique Agia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 11, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Monique Agia
222 S Helix Ave Apt 03
Solana Beach, CA 92075-1814

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monique Blanchette
43 Tatem St
Putnam, CT 06260

=====
From: Monique Bossett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Bossett
6014 Norhill Blvd
Houston, Texas 77009

=====
From: Monique Brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Brown
11632 Carmenita Rd Unit C
Whittier, California 90605

=====
From: Monique Christian
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Christian
310 Tinney St
Talladega, Alabama 35160

=====
From: Monique Darling
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Darling
6016 NW 24th Ave
Miami, Florida 33142

=====
From: Monique Denhert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change

Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Denhert
26210 Mapleview Dr
Plainfield, Illinois 60585

=====
From: Monique Dolcy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Dolcy
1306 Christiana Mdws
Bear, Delaware 19701

=====

From: Monique Evans
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Evans
4960 Quail Ct Apt 06
Louisville, Kentucky 40213

=====
From: Monique Gladden
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Gladden
540 Shepherd Ave
Brooklyn, New York 11208

=====
From: Monique Harris
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Harris
2546 Tidewater Dr
Norfolk, Virginia 23504

=====
From: Monique Jackson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Jackson
117 Valley View Dr
Shelbyville, Kentucky 40065

=====
From: Monique Jeter-Griffin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Jeter-Griffin
210 Lever Rd
Newberry, South Carolina 29108
=====

From: Monique Padilla
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Padilla
1128 Sand Dune Rd NE
Rio Rancho, New Mexico 87144

=====
From: Monique Paige
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Paige
34395 Via San Juan, A
Capistrano Beach, California 92624

=====
From: Monique Randolph
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Randolph
3405 Milbrad St
Houston, Texas 77026

=====
From: Monique Rover
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Rover
99 Cole Dr Apt 19
Sausalito, California 94965

=====
From: Monique Thomas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Thomas
1209 NE 38th St
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73111

=====
From: Monique Warren
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Monique Warren
121 C I Chapman Ct.
Taylorsville, NC 28681

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Monique Warren

=====
From: Monique Woods
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monique Woods
349 E 35th St
Minneapolis, Minnesota 55408

=====
From: Monisha Hussain
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monisha Hussain
8426 Wallace Glen Dr
Charlotte, North Carolina 28212

=====
From: Moni Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moni Smith
449 Whispering Hills Dr
Lexington, Kentucky 40517

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Greta Emrick
604 S Mulberry St Apt B
Troy, OH 45373

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian Moniz
19240 Eden Path
Salinas, CA 93907

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Sanchez
1635 Coventry Way
Lodi, CA 95240

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Mcleod
Po Box 1204
Vass, NC 28394

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Larry Bayly
5206 E Maiden Rd
Maiden, NC 28650

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Weber
Po Box 202
Brooten, MN 56316

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -\202-\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gustavo Garcia
Po Box 534151
Harlingen, TX 78553

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Hannah Hall
937+imperial+ct
Halethorpe, MD 21227

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jason Berry
1224+farnham+ct+e
Irving, TX 75062

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Anthony Delucia
135 Laurel Mill Ct
Roswell, GA 30076

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dave Bailey
8896+janis+st
Shelby+twp, MI 48317

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Wendy Sheilton
519 Woodbury St
Miles City, MT 59301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear. Investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Ferguson
116 Hawthorne Dr
Milford, PA 18337

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeffery Risner
1420+truman+st+se+apt+01
Albuquerque, NM 87108

=====
From: Monroe Colvett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monroe Colvett
112 Sylvan Drive
Milton , Delaware 19968

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: marvin monroe
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 63 wash ander's lane
Zip: 29673

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monroe Goodman
4494 Ector St
Beaumont, TX 77705

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eric Monsees
4841+s+thompson+ave
Tacoma, WA 98408

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chauncey Stuart
1 S Nelson St
Hutchinson, KS 67501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lamont Robinson
843 Putnam St
Newport, KY 41071

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeffery Simms
1337+michigan+ave
Port+allen, LA 70767

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Betty Corriveau
906 N Forbes Rd
Plant City, FL 33566

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dave Trumbo
1225 S Rice Rd Spc 76
Ojai, CA 93023

=====
From: Montavis Lewis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Montavis Lewis
403 Southampton St
Emporia, Virginia 23847

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Thorpe
po+box+125
Kimper, KY 41539

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Javier Mendoza
1373 N Hurricane Ave
Colton, CA 92324

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job -- providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service -- it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian Hartman
3651+school+st
Wenatchee, WA 98801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jack Montferret
2601 Terraza Pl
Fullerton, CA 92835

=====
From: Monte Kunkel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monte Kunkel
702 S. Alabama
Amarillo, Texas 79106

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Montel Julius
314+murraylane+rd
Greensboro, NC 27405

=====
From: Montel Ellis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Montel Ellis
16610 Hendrickson Pl
Jamaica, New York 11433

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monte Murphy
5638 S Artesian Ave
Chicago, IL 60629

=====
From: Monte Nelson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monte Nelson
1601 N 1400 E
Heber City, Utah 84032

=====
From: Monte Russell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Monte Russell
13232 N 55th Ave
Glendale, AZ 85304

=====
From: monte strong
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monte strong
1355 New York Ave NE
Washington, District of Columbia 20002

=====
From: Monte Williams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Monte Williams
4744 Ambrose St.
Missoula, MT 59808

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Monte Williams

=====
From: Mont Hash
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mont Hash
5009 Sentinel Drive
Indian Trail, North Carolina 28079

=====
From: Montiel Moore
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Montiel Moore
3875 Cadieux Rd
Detroit, Michigan 48224

=====
From: Montique Evans
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Montique Evans
3079 N 22nd St
Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53206

=====
From: Monti Wilkinson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monti Wilkinson
9809 Buckeye St. NW
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87114

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Henrietta Montoya
3913+hiland+dr
Waco, TX 76711

=====
From: Montrae Ford
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Montrae Ford
15307 Ensenada Dr
Houston, Texas 77083

=====
From: monty barry
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

monty barry

, New Mexico 88044

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kent Montgomery
6000 Garden Grove Blvd Apt 101
Westminster, CA 92683

=====
From: Monty Hoffsommer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Monty Hoffsommer
902 Jackson Dr
Liberty, MO 64068

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm Americaâ\200\231s digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Monty Hoffsommer

=====
From: Monty Mccullough
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Monty Mccullough
2326 Orlando St
Charlotte, North Carolina 28206

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monty Montgomery
621 E 53rd St S
Muskogee, OK 74403

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Monty Sarvo
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 730 McClure Road
Zip: 88007

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Monty Thomas
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: P.O. Box 455 Deport ,tx
Zip: 75435

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Kay
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1409 Crayton Ave.
Zip: 45805

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital

mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcus Barnes
404 E Saint Louis St
Lebanon, IL 62254

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Daniel Gillaspie
9660 Barlow Rd
Fort Belvoir, VA 22060

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohamed Dawood
5408 8th St S
Arlington, VA 22204

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Philip Moon
6821 Plymouth Rd Apt 05
Stockton, CA 95207

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Katie Roth
420 Kingston St S
St Petersburg, FL 33711

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Karen Mitchell
8782 Littlefield Ln
Alanson, MI 49706

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eric Mooney
7139 W Hatcher Rd
Peoria, AZ 85345

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Thomas
446+mooney+ave
Clarksdale, MS 38614

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Lubocki
480 S 9th St Apt E302
Quakertown, PA 18951

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jude Nance
405 Smith St
Sheridan, WY 82801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rachel Allen
861 Haeckerville Rd
Cibolo, TX 78108

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: RC
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1100 East Geyser St Lot 02
Zip: 59047

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Judy Dozier
1235+Briarcliff+Rd+Apt+121
Reynoldsburg, OH 43068

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Wade Simpson
5900 Polk St
Arlington, TN 38002

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Roger Moore
1031 E Waco Ave
Cooper, TX 75432

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Betty Moore
1817 Marshall St
Abilene, TX 79605

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rodney Moore
9123+e+38th+st
Tulsa, OK 74145

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Moore
po+box+413+box+413
Elwood, NJ 08217

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Allen Moore
7208 Lodge Cir
Las Vegas, NV 89129

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Melissa Moore
1175 E Lincoln Ave
Anaheim, CA 92805

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ramona Moore
3807 Roundrock Dr
Killeen, TX 76549

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Quintin Cumbee
3017+fennell+rd
Donalsonville, GA 39845

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Boyce
2002 N 37th St
Muskogee, OK 74401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Paul Laincz
319 E Pine St
Sellersville, PA 18960

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bruce Raber
323+euclid+ave
Peru, IN 46970

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ronald Inabnit
2009 S Meridian St
Indianapolis, IN 46225

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kihong Kim
107 Cherokee Rdg
Athens, GA 30606

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
George Moone
1270 Winaki Trl
Algonquin, IL 60102

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: linda J jenkins
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 402 2nd St Po Box 150
Zip: 58853

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen

Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Roy Suire
110 Shady Grove Dr
Patterson, LA 70392

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Fred Mootz
181 Maywood Dr
Youngstown, OH 44512

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Campbell
4423+katy+kim+ln
Ooltewah, TN 37363

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuel Morales
2608 Rising Legend Way
Las Vegas, NV 89106

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Debra Morales
8790 Wallaby Ln
Las Vegas, NV 89123

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Morales
3647+fairground+rd
Montgomery, AL 36110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joan Moran
1423 25th Ave
Greeley, CO 80634

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -- investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marco Leon

2901 Camino Del Tomasini
Hacienda Hts, CA 91745

=====
From: Moreah Vestan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moreah Vestan
5646 42nd Ave SW
Seattle, Washington 98136

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Chris Fernandez
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 44535 Aspen St
Zip: 93535

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Morelli
12+via+serra+st
Watsonville, CA 95076

=====
From: morena galdamez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

morena galdamez
124 Grace Ave
Sacramento, California 95838

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tiffany Deas
411+e+10th+st+apt+6g
New+york, NY 10009

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Adri Garcia
1663 Calle Zafiro
Thousand Oaks, CA 91320

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eduardo Moreno
4918 Virginia Ave
Long Beach, CA 90805

=====
From: Moreno Monteagudo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moreno Monteagudo
459 Alegra Ter
Milpitas, California 95035

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milton Moreno
6403 Cougar Dr
Sacramento, CA 95828

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rick Moore
406 E Ridge Ct
Hartsville, TN 37074

=====
From: Morey Stanton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morey Stanton
20327 Powell Rd
Brooksville, Florida 34604

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robyn Morgan
925 N 4240 Rd
Hugo, OK 74743

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Deb Stanton
306 Lakewood Dr
Petersburg, VA 23805

=====
From: Morgan Chapman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morgan Chapman
11607 Niagara Dr
Mira Loma, California 91752

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Elayne Morgan
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 38945 5th Ave
Zip: 33542

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Morgan Hoover
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Keep the Internet Free

I desire to maintain a free forum of thinking, ideas, and commerce on the internet. More regulation only serves as an avenue of corruption for individual benefits disguised under the facade of Government and advances the agendas upon the backs and the expense of the populace. Please allow individuals to be responsible for themselves while working within a fair platform.

Thank you,

Tyler Hoover

=====
From: Morgan McDaniel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morgan McDaniel
PO Box 536
Devers, Texas 77538

=====

From: Morgan Quignon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morgan Quignon
3718 N 54th St
Omaha, Nebraska 68104

=====
From: Morgan Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morgan Smith
6745 S Santa Ana Ave
Boise, Idaho 83709

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Morgan Suhm
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 9303 Wesleyan Ct
Zip: 77845

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morgan Womack
17421 Paseo Carmelo
Los Gatos, CA 95030

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -\202-\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amy Morin
4967 Sw 5th Ct
Margate, FL 33068

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Koji Morita
1107 W 41st Pl
Los Angeles, CA 90037

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morris Weaver
43 Hillcrest Dr
Tuscola, IL 61953

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Carl Morano
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 155 Crest Drive
Zip: 07109

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nan Merrill
45 Ems B21 Ln
Pierceton, IN 46562

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: PATRICIA FISHER
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 304 S.E. MLK JR ST
Zip: 76067

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President

Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be a slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Hernan Sotomarino
11736 Gurley Ave Apt A
Downey, CA 90241

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey Burow
7161+bennett+lake+rd
Fenton, MI 48430

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ashella McKeever
po+box+396
Fremont, OH 43420

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
John Ferrer
1431 Ne 117th St
Miami, FL 33161

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Terry Harrison
450 Rolling Hills Pl
Lancaster, TX 75146

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rodney Morris
945 Durango
Lansing, MI 48917

=====
From: Morris Bond
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Morris Bond
34221 Skyline Drive
Golden, CO 80403

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Morris Bond

=====
From: Morris John and Joy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morris John and Joy
6674 Portage Ave.
Portage, Indiana 46368

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morris Jones
2425+n+inyo+st
Bakersfield, CA 93305

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morris Kpaka
218+w+c+st
Ontario, CA 91762

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morris Purcell
3115+bowfin+dr
Land+o+lakes, FL 34639

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Morris
1552 View Pl
Buckley, WA 98321

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Morris Weaver
1118 Neal St
Navasota, TX 77868

=====
From: Morris Shaul1
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morris Shaul1
801 Newbridge Rd 39179277
North Bellmore, New York 11710

=====
From: Morris Short
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Morris Short
7425 E. 47th. St. So.
Derby, KS 67037

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current hands off regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called net neutrality rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing net neutrality and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Morris Short

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Theresa Jensen
1509+manatawny+dr
Boyertown, PA 19512

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dale Lynn
408 N Madison St
Washburn, IL 61570

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Roger Mortimer
4920 Nw 21st Ave
Miami, FL 33142

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear. The investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martha Ortiz
3905+skofstad+st
Riverside, CA 92505

=====
From: Morton Brisker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Morton Brisker
1205 Queensway Ct.
Bel Air, Maryland 21014-6829

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ãçâ\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ellen Maston
203+turtle+creek+dr
Warner+robins, GA 31088

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
George Masterson
5976 E Avenida La Vida
Anaheim, CA 92807

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ken Moseley
3742 Poplar Ave
Memphis, TN 38111

=====
From: Mose Mcelory
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mose Mcelory
24021 Morton St
Oak Park, Michigan 48237

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moses Yamabushi
101 Boardwalk Apt 728
Atlantic City, NJ 08401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it.

Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Heid
746+e+collins+dr
Goldendale, WA 98620

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Josh Holtz
2931 E Villa Rita Dr
Phoenix, AZ 85032

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Torrance Moses
po+box+1603
Patterson, LA 70392

=====
From: Moses Gilliam
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moses Gilliam
4917 Oleatha Ave
Saint Louis, Missouri 63139

=====
From: Moses Richardson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moses Richardson
5272 Copley Cir
Summerville, South Carolina 29485

=====
From: Moses Simpkins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Moses Simpkins
560 Candle Ln Apt 104
Newport News, Virginia 23608

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Moses Sisombath
8120 Rambler Rose St
Fort Worth, TX 76137

=====
From: Moses Valdez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Moses O. Valdez
9734 State Hwy 281
5055
Kelseyville. Ca. 95451

Thank you,

Moses Valdez
9734 State Highway 281
5055
Kelseyville, CA 95451-8401

=====
From: Mosetta McRae-Ross
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mosetta McRae-Ross
1928 Allen St
Charlotte, North Carolina 28205

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jim Hayes
10051 Faulk Rd
Crowley, LA 70526

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jesus Ramirez
3904 Sir Payne Ct
Las Vegas, NV 89104

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Demoss
830+joshua+st
Quincy, IL 62305

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Megan Ortenzio
6611 Applewood Blvd
Youngstown, OH 44512

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kathy Husbands
381 Leslie St
Newark, NJ 07112

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Connie Ellis
Po Box 11
Stapleton, GA 30823

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ed Mossuto
1568 Loma Alta
San Marcos, CA 92069

=====
From: Mostafa Elsaadawy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mostafa Elsaadawy
616 Riverchase Trl
Hoover, Alabama 35244

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Julie Luther
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2804 Shady Lawn Dr. Greensboro, NC
Zip: 27408

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -\202-\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Verna Ross
133 Whitestone Dr Ne
Huntsville, AL 35810

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years -\202-\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Thomas Montgomery
199+fire+tower+dr
Tonawanda, NY 14150

=====
From: Mo Tamjid
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mo Tamjid
28822 Old Town Front St Ste 304
Temecula, California 92590

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brenda Grubb
639+lemaster+ln
Olive+hill, KY 41164

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Garcia
1307 E Power Ave
Victoria, TX 77901

=====
From: MotoInfo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet

Please do not make the Internet a 'have' or 'have not' community.Â The model as-is is an almost idealÂ blend of performance with fair pricing.Â Creating "lanes" will only raise costs for consumers while placing a large portion of the user community into a less capable category of performance.

Dale Houck

Â

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cam Goslin
370 Silver St
Middleton, NH 03887

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Paula Bolden
503 Buckeye St
Genoa, OH 43430

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Stephen Voisine
11a Church St
Sanford, ME 04073

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cody Scott
408 W South St
Morrison, IL 61270

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martha Bertich
1030+e+avenue+s+spc+90
Palmdale, CA 93550

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Glenn Williamson
2159 11th St
Sparks, NV 89431

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Silvia Motta
1137 E California Ave Apt 19
Glendale, CA 91206

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christopher Godfrey
231 E Fox Dale Rd
Bayside, WI 53217

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ron Potraffke
po+box+79
Marathon, OH 45145

=====
From: Mouna Schaheen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Protect Net Neutrality

I was deeply disappointed to hear that the Federal Communications Commission is planning on implementing rule changes that would allow Internet service providers to pay for special, faster lanes to deliver their content. In an environment where large corporations can pay for faster service, start-ups and every day Internet users won't be able to compete and we will lose the open, free-flowing exchange of information that has made the Internet so dynamic and integral to our lives.

The FCC can ensure it has the tools to act by reclassifying broadband as a telecommunications service. I urge you to reject the new rules and to take this vital and common sense step toward protecting net neutrality.

Mouna Schaheen

Tucson, AZ 85750

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Ed Carter
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 208 marttala rd,
Zip: 98596

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Amanda Cubbage
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 6172 Promised Land Rd.
Zip: 22827

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital

mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Cannon
129 E 3rd St
Leadville, CO 80461

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Natashka Moderzinsky
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 154 south whitney st
Zip: 06105

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: martina olson
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Address: p.o. box 64 yachats oregon
Zip: 97498

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Timothy Brown
1439+prospect+ave+unit+d
Placentia, CA 92870

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tom Lawrence
2410+border+dr
Erie, PA 16506

=====
From: Mousa Naber
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mousa Naber
55 Gibson Pl
Yonkers, New York 10705

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Chapple
602 Ne Bockes Loop
Sheridan, OR 97378

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lisa Diamond
605 Maurine St
Idaho Falls, ID 83401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear --â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brenda Ernest
Rr 01 Box 67
Matoaka, WV 24736

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers -â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
David Whitmer
1408 S Kendall Ave
Bradford, PA 16701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jerry Williams
525+americana+blvd
Boise, ID 83702

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sharon Sommer
235 Colina Way
Oroville, CA 95966

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change

Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bonnie Tuck
15+terrace+dr
Vancouver, WA 98661

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Abdullahi Dahir
764 Jolly Ave S Apt N8
Clarkston, GA 30021

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Larry Moye
14222 Dallas Pkwy Apt 1105
Dallas, TX 75254

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Gonzalez
204 Park Ridge Ave
Tampa, FL 33617

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Diamond Cole
5411 Jeff Davis Dr
Alexandria, LA 71302

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maurice Gonzales
2677 A St
La Verne, CA 91750

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Moazzam Manzoor
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 37 Longdale St.
Zip: 10314

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Pope
Po Box 412
Seminary, MS 39479

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Walter Abrams
1242 W Smoot Pl
Tucson, AZ 85705

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mohammad Haghighipناه
14409 123rd Ln Ne Apt 07
Kirkland, WA 98034

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Parson
51 Greenhouse Blvd
West Hartford, CT 06110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Paschal
14044 Troy Duplessis Rd
Gonzales, LA 70737

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Passaglia
624+belsay+castle+ct
Las+vegas, NV 89178

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Patzak II
1168 Beal Rd
Mansfield, OH 44905

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Payne
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 390 Northwood Dr.
Zip: 36360

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Payne
409+mount+everest+ct
Modesto, CA 95358

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcia Buckie
618+farmer+st
Plymouth, MI 48170

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Perri
120 Ludlow St
Yonkers, NY 10705

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kendrick
6006 Whittier St
Detroit, MI 48224

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mellisa Petreshock
525+obanion+ln
Owenton, KY 40359

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sandra Norman
5215 Galitz St Apt 3e
Skokie, IL 60077

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Hall
1140 Beebe Ln
Williston, VT 05495

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Halloran
321 Hollie Dr E
Belford, NJ 07718

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Hanna
4242 Brittany Ct
Woodbridge, VA 22192

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Pierce
2550+eastland+dr
Owensboro, KY 42303

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michael pirlot
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 302 3rd st iron mountain michigan 49801
Zip: 49801

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Jennings
2891 Betsy Way
San Jose, CA 95133

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joshua Apachito
10123 Range Rd Sw
Albuquerque, NM 87121

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Polizzotto
1503 Holland Dr
Somerset, NJ 08873

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Omara
21+cedar+grove+ave
Tyngsboro, MA 01879

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Philemond
3986 W Sandpiper Dr Apt 02
Boynton Beach, FL 33436

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Reap
11 Amherst Ct Apt B
Royal Plm Bch, FL 33411

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Â¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Â¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Prestano
5504 Belvidere Pl
Greensboro, NC 27410

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Prewitt
120 N Sangamon St
Chicago, IL 60607

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maurice Price
2043+june+johnson+rd
Raeford, NC 28376

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Smith
po+box+1997
Gloucester, VA 23061

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Morris
8186 N Lakeshore Dr
Shreveport, LA 71107

=====

From: m pyse
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

m pyse
2015 c r 153m
palmyra, Missouri 63461

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Pyzik
6644 Wind Ridge Rd
Mount Airy, MD 21771

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maqsood Haque
36789 San Pedro Dr Apt 249
Fremont, CA 94536

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maria Tarr
123 Mimosa St
Hereford, TX 79045

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Quirino
322+44th+st
Richmond, CA 94805

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Smith
10844 Glenhaven Way
Rncho Cordova, CA 95670

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Long Nguyen
2216 E 22nd St
Oakland, CA 94606

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Abraham Amaya
850 Hillcrest Rd Apt 14
Hollister, CA 95023

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alberto Abrantes
2800+n+tracy+blvd+apt+110
Tracy, CA 95376

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Andy Huynh
10787+acacia+pkwy
Garden+grove, CA 92840

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rose Mayfield
69 Brewer St
Templeton, CA 93465

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Andrew
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 3447 Hughes Rd. Morrisville, NY
Zip: 13408

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Smallwood
8515 Kangaroo Ct
Raleigh, NC 27615

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey Allen Jr
503 Monaco Dr
Springfield, OH 45506

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Randy Wright
1517 Rimrock Dr
Escondido, CA 92027

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alan Wright
14544 Billie Ln
Dade City, FL 33525

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Steven Ramey
9484 Kimbro Ave S
Cottage Grove, MN 55016

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ramon Martinez
705+w+maple+ave

Bloomfield, NM 87413

=====
From: Mr and Mrs Charles Cowart
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mr and Mrs Charles Cowart
7345 Callis Rd
Bronwood, Georgia 39826

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Andrew Cares
2540 W Gail Dr
Chandler, AZ 85224

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Gross
2235+e+honeysuckle+st
Tucson, AZ 85706

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Frank Bruno
104 Hamilton Pl
Vernon Hills, IL 60061

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brandon Alford
35 Babe Ramey Rd
Clayton, GA 30525

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Linda Schwartz
157 School House Rd
Cape May Ch, NJ 08210

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marvin Pitts
929+thomas+st
Union+springs, AL 36089

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Byron Nelson
227 N 3rd St
Corsicana, TX 75110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Rice
2216 N Pine St
Charlotte, NC 28206

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: brent clement liles
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1404 Windsor
Zip: 70068

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeff Francis
372 Meadows Blvd
Pickerington, OH 43147

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Aurelio Bustos
3602 W Dayton Ave
Fresno, CA 93722

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lawrence Ferreira
731+monroe+ave
Elizabeth, NJ 07201

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: campbell
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 23754 n desert agave st
Zip: 85132

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marco Hernandez
801+palomino+rd
Chino+valley, AZ 86323

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Johnston
404 Egret Lndg Apt 304
Virginia Bch, VA 23454

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Christopher Evans
26396+cape+mendocino+ct
Moreno+valley, CA 92555

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tony Friends
10272 Nightingale Ave
Fountain Vly, CA 92708

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chris Melton
2009 Yacht Vindex
Newport Beach, CA 92660

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian Chambers
5732 E Oakbrook St
Long Beach, CA 90815

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Conboy
10060+70th+st+se
Clara+city, MN 56222

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Miles cook
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 5033cty rd 335#68 new castle, co
Zip: 81647

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation

that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dave Beatie
125 Sunny Hill Dr Apt A
Petaluma, CA 94952

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Dixon
3577 Napier Ave
Macon, GA 31204

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Leevern Coleman
13097 Cedar Rd
Cleveland, OH 44118

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Scott Duet
2018 Saint Mary St
Thibodaux, LA 70301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dwayne Rowell
302 Decatur St Se
Atlanta, GA 30312

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Justin Draper
942+frazier+dr
Walla+walla, WA 99362

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mandy Smith
2746 Wilsonville Rd
Fishersville, KY 40023

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ed Riffle
po+box+278
Burnsville, WV 26335

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Rednall
8755 Cinerama Cir
Anchorage, AK 99516

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Reed
329 S Saint Cloud St
Allentown, PA 18104

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mabel
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 5601 DUNCAN RD.
Zip: 33982

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Emanuel Tinsley
4160 Shearwater Dr
Macon, GA 31206

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Rennie
564 S Mulberry Rd
Collinsville, IL 62234

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cat Kiehn
7432+tacoma+ave+s
Tacoma, WA 98408

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Andrew Ellis
917+grand+ave+se
Bandon, OR 97411

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miles Flugence
37659 Los Arboles Dr
Fremont, CA 94536

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 121 Broadview Terrace
Zip: 01201

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be

â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Giovanni Palacio
238 Grove St Apt 2e
Brooklyn, NY 11237

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myrna Gandy
6824 Conrad Dr
Sacramento, CA 95828

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gilbert Gonzales
14351 Starsia St
Westminster, CA 92683

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jerold Gilbert
2341 W Dorothea Ave
Visalia, CA 93277

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Greenhalgh
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 119 Honora Ave
Zip: 01826

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's

government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Gregory
2893+s+jackson+ct
Tucson, AZ 85708

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Carlyns Guiteau
735 E 104th St
Chicago, IL 60628

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Edgar Guzman
10727 Pelican Ave
Stockton, CA 95209

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Hernando Ang
6410+80th+st
Middle+vlg, NY 11379

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mike Rhoads
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 7601 Lancelot Rd
Zip: 75035

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Hipple
36 James St
Barre, MA 01005

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Ian C. Carter
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 22 Primo Rd.
Zip: 98537

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marcus Ricks
569 S 17th St
Newark, NJ 07103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sandra Ries
228 Timberlake Rd
Sheboygan, WI 53081

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jorge Ramos
941 Palomar Way
Oxnard, CA 93033

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Calderon
712+california+st
Huntingtn+bch, CA 92648

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Anthony Jackson
1210 W 84th St

Los Angeles, CA 90044

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Donald Jenkins
205 Whites Rd
Zanesville, OH 43701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Mills

8723 Earthenware Dr
Charlotte, NC 28269

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joey Bowers
1207 E Mitchell St
Tucson, AZ 85719

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ronald Jiles
10825 Lands End Dr
Stockton, CA 95209

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeff Mitchell
Po Box 102
Bloomington, CA 92316

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joe Washburn
3307 Nw 4th St
Cape Coral, FL 33993

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joel Hagen
4324+riverside+dr
Crystal+lake, IL 60014

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jr Ruiz-topete
1429 7th Ave
Oakland, CA 94606

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gregory Jones
390 Henderson Rd Apt 8a
Roxboro, NC 27573

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ethan Jordan
23626 Soresina
Laguna Hills, CA 92653

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joshua Jenkins
10776 Pemberton St
Adelanto, CA 92301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Williams
180 Silver Maple Way
Porterville, CA 93257

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Julius Ware
810 Wadsworth St Apt 204a
Tallahassee, FL 32304

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joseph Wolosyk
po+box+5399
Bakersfield, CA 93388

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Barton
1807+parnell+ave
San+antonio, TX 78224

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Bernard
7182+layne+dr
Horn+lake, MS 38637

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michele keith
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Kittery, Me
Zip: 03904

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Keith James
821 Nw 14th Ave

Ft Lauderdale, FL 33311

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kendrick Triplett
406 Cagle St
Louisville, MS 39339

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Â¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dexter Davis
2317 W 74th St
Los Angeles, CA 90043

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maurice Davis
3501 Oakland Ave
Minneapolis, MN 55407

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ryan Bulkeley
207 Huntington Rd
Easley, SC 29642

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dan Abarca
1130+w+3rd+st
Merced, CA 95341

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Reagan
773 Circle Dr
Piggott, AR 72454

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Lotre
1221+bruce+b+downs+blvd
Wesley+chapel, FL 33544

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rigoberto Garcia
3368 Cherokee Ave
South Gate, CA 90280

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joseph Larry
2809 Amber Cv
Sherwood, AR 72120

=====
From: Mr. Leslie Hadley

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mr. Leslie Hadley
4415 Highway 76
Moscow, Tennessee 38057

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gregory Lewis
6220 Murray Dr Apt 17c
Charleston, SC 29410

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Steve Long
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 1045 E Robinhood Dr
Zip: 98223

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eddie Lopez
10187+tradepost+rd
Lucerne+vly, CA 92356

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Tyler
204 W 95th St
Chicago, IL 60628

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Majhor
20215 Sw Veta St
Beaverton, OR 97006

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Daanoy
41 E Victory St
Pearce, AZ 85625

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michael rhodes
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 317 e 200 s Brigham City, UT
Zip: 84302

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
A Stafford McDonald
27274+lexington+pkwy
Southfield, MI 48076

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Drain

43+w+meadowlawn+ave
Battle+creek, MI 49037

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Meza
235 E Ceres St
Rialto, CA 92376

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Leo Hunkin
3745 Singing Lark Ct
N Las Vegas, NV 89032

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Cozzolino
1632 Earl Ave
Louisville, KY 40215

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Andy Patterson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Andy and Kerry Patterson
372 Greenway Dr
Pacifica, CA 94044

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Arnold Johnston
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Arnold Johnston
94 Shepard Home Rd
Chester, NH 03036

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Bill Kusy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Bill Kusy
PO Box 840124
Saint Augustine, FL 32080
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Bob Orlando
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Bob Orlando
860 S Miller Ct
Lakewood, CO 80226

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Bud Thompson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Bud Thompson
15040 Mystic St
Whittier, CA 90604

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Charles Frey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Charles Frey
702 Tarpon Ln
Niceville, FL 32578

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. C. Neely
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

C. Neely
1645 SE Aust Manor Dr
Chehalis, WA 98532

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. David Hoffman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives

precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

David and Loretta Hoffman
22949 Nadine Cir Unit A
Torrance, CA 90505

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. David McClellan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

David McClellan
717 Stewart Way
Brentwood, CA 94513

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. David Rowell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

David W. Rowell
530 Sawmill Rd
Garrison, MT 59731

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Dewayne Evans
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Dewayne Evans
292 Cherry Valley Rd
Steelville, MO 65565
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Dolor Voss
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Dolor Voss
18233 Water Tower Rd
Carlyle, IL 62231

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Donald Cartmil
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Donald M.Cartmill
905 Brenda Sue Dr
Flatwoods, KY 41139

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Donald Klapproth
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Donald Klapproth
7615 Southern Brook Bnd
Tampa, FL 33635
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Douglas Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Douglas Smith
1134 Mark St
Colona, IL 61241

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Eddie Hubbard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Eddie Hubbard
16832 State Route 08
McMinnville, TN 37110

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Ed Tynan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Ed and Judy Tynan
3637 N 87th St
Scottsdale, AZ 85251

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Edward C Lynch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Edward C and Elizabeth A Lynch
5 Bridle Way
Manchester Township, NJ 08759

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. E. L. Lankowski
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

E. L. Lankowski
1350 Forest Hill Rd
Stevens, PA 17578
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. frederic petler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

frederic petler
28146 Panorama Hills Dr
Menifee, CA 92584

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Fred Zak
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Fred Zak
30 Monastery Hill Ln
Oconomowoc, WI 53066
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Gene Brault
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Gene Brault
2115 Hyperion Ave
Los Angeles, CA 90027

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. George Gobble
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

George Gobble
7242 Wood Haven Rd

Roanoke, VA 24019

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Glenn McDermott
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Glenn McDermott
13 Wood Creek Dr
Rome, NY 13440

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Harold Todd
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Harold Todd
225 County Road 08
Greenwood, NE 68366

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. James Calarese
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Jim Calarese
20 Beach Street Ext
Milford, MA 01757

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. James Hamilton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mr and Mrs James C Hamilton
237 Cheshire Ln
Piney Flats, TN 37686
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Jeff Cary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Jeff Cary
1530 Bristol Ln
Schererville, IN 46375

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. JOE KLEIN
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

JOE KLEIN
9426 County Road 107
Proctorville, OH 45669
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. John Doud
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

John Doud
PO Box 701
Brownsboro, TX 75756

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. John O'Hara
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mr. xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx Mrs. John O'Hara
PO Box 4119
Brookings, OR 97415

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. John Schena
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

John Schena
465 Elmer Hayes Rd
Mosheim, TN 37818

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. John Tirrell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

John Tirrell
1205 E Deer Canyon Rd
Tucson, AZ 85718

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Joseph Bellino
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Joseph M Bellino
3814 Nantucket Dr
Joliet, IL 60435

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Keith Dahms
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Keith Dahms
2456 Autumn Ridge Ct
Chanhassen, MN 55317

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Kirk Gudenau
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Kirk Gudenau
1792 N Albright Ave
Upland, CA 91784
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Larry Briggs

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Larry Briggs
51 Allen Trl
Carson, MS 39427
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Lawrence Creasy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Lawrence Creasy
1919 Spring Hill Dr
Sevierville, TN 37876

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Les Koether
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives

precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Les Koether
11941 FM 1383
Schulenburg, TX 78956

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. lester duplessie
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

lester duplessie
21901 Judge Smiley Rd
Livingston, LA 70754

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. matt lazaro
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

matt lazaro
2307 Lake Summerset Rd
Davis, IL 61019

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Michael Bradley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Bradley
22015 Hutchinson Rd
Los Gatos, CA 95033
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Michael Varvis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Varvis
3781 Monterey Dr
Lake Havasu City, AZ 86406

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Mikel Conner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Gaynel & Mikel W. Conner
366 Acree Acres Rd
Johnson City, TX 78636
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Paul Wilson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Paul Wilson
42 River Rd
Pittsburg, NH 03592
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Phil Doucette
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Phil Doucette
103 Ivon Dr
Syracuse, NY 13212
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Ragusa
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mr. & Mrs. Ragusa

, 14609

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Ray and Charlotte Foreman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Ray and Charlotte Foreman
179 Jimmy Dr
Crowley, LA 70526
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Ray McSparran
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Ray McSparran
1929 Redbud
Pittsboro, NC 27312
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Ray Mullins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Ray Mullins
2119 Old Legend Dr
Sugar Land, TX 77478

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. reginald atkinson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

reggie and sally atkinson
38 Cypress Ln
Carlisle, PA 17015
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Richard Reschick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mr. & Mrs. Richard A. Reschick
501 Altoona Dr
Fredericksburg, VA 22401

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Robert Dillon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Robert Dillon
461 Water Falls Rd
Nicktown, PA 15762
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Robert Kirk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Robert Kirk
2235 Rock Springs Rd
Kingsport, TN 37664
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. ROBERT PANTLEY
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

ROBERT M. PANTLEY
16707 131st Way N
Jupiter, FL 33478

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Robert Peacock
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Robert Peacock
3045 Hartman Way
San Diego, CA 92117

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Robert Pressly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Robert Pressly
9015 E 131st St
Fishers, IN 46038

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Robert Taylor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Robert Taylor
7689 Audubon Dr
Foley, AL 36535
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Ronald Demkowicz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Ronald Demkowicz
368 S Plank Rd
Westtown, NY 10998
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Roy Royster
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Roy Royster
692 Whiteoak Swamps Rd
Dunlap, TN 37327
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Scott Mellring
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Scott Mellring
13 Hialeah Dr
Saint Peters, MO 63376
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Steve Bailey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Steve Bailey
23227 Freedom Ave Apt 14
Punta Gorda, FL 33980

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Steven Jackson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mr. & Mrs. Steven Jackson
16419 Sandalwood St
Fountain Valley, CA 92708

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. T. Curtis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mr. & Mrs. T. Curtis
2906 Alameda St
Medford, 97504

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Terrance Fleck
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Terrance Fleck
8062 SW 81st Loop
Ocala, FL 34476
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Theodore Kane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Theodore Kane
12 Tilbury Park
Gardiner, ME 04345

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Pacia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mary & Thomas Pacia
10 Webber Ct

Florence, NJ 08518

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Tom Donahue
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Tom Donahue
3307 Hornsea Rd
Chesapeake, VA 23325

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Tom Phipps
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Tom Phipps
609 S Lincoln Highway Rd
Lerna, IL 62440
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Mr. & Mrs. Walter Stephens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Walter Stephens
50 Rinetti Way
Rio Linda, CA 95673
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Warren Penninton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Warren and Diane Pennington
4729 230th St N
Port Byron, IL 61275
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. Wayne and Judith Ruffner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Wayne and Judith Ruffner
352 MT Highway 87
Cameron, MT 59720

=====
From: Mr. & Mrs. William Black
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mr. & Mrs. William Black
4088 54th St.
Holland, Michigan 49423

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Teachey
4701 Crestmont Pl
Oceanside, CA 92056

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jerome Robinson

1912 Medary Ave
Philadelphia, PA 19141

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Estes
1701 N 59th St
Lincoln, NE 68505

=====
From: Mr O'Leary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPAâ\200\231s draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mr O'Leary
11629 Centralia St
Lakewood, California 90715

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Oliver
1309 Wheatfield Dr
Mesquite, TX 75149

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Olrando Davila
1511+birchwood+dr
Pasadena, TX 77502

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Romero
153+alpine+dr+se
Leesburg, VA 20175

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Telusnord
3382 Nw 36th Ave
Laud Lakes, FL 33309

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitchell Roush
525 N Ohio Ave

York, NE 68467

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Taylor
3321 Se 21st St
Oklahoma City, OK 73115

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Vohs
805 Windsor Rd
Round Rock, TX 78664

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Pennington
1237 E Silktassel Trl
Queen Creek, AZ 85243

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
David Largent
141 Carter Ln
Eureka, CA 95503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Reginald Gredwick
1305 N 28th St
Terre Haute, IN 47803

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lucas Fuechsl
540 Hawthorn Ln
Hoffman Est, IL 60169

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Edwin Philip
2053+seagirt+blvd+apt+5a
Far+rockaway, NY 11691

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Stephens
636+lee+st
Hampton, VA 23669

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ronald Foreman
126+lee+ave
Bullhead+city, AZ 86429

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Noah Tallant
208+n+main+st
Chilhowee, MO 64733

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maria Perez
223+w+regent+st+apt+02
Inglewood, CA 90301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kellermann
119 Tregarone Rd
Luthvle Timon, MD 21093

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marqui Cummings
898 Little Bear Cv Ne
Conyers, GA 30012

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Clayton Glosson
405 Se 13th Ter
Gainesville, FL 32641

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Willis Willson
91 N 100 W
Springville, UT 84663

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Yasser Hammam
824+cedar+ln+apt+2b
Teaneck, NJ 07666

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rob Hingstrum
17+deer+run+rd
Orion, IL 61273

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Audrey Gant
5405 Gunnison Dr
Killeen, TX 76542

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sam Chnathavone
777+ogden+st
Bridgeport, CT 06608

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Violet Smith
2147+n+roger+peed+dr
Hampton, VA 23663

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gail Brown

99 Saunders St
Whitehall, NY 12887

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alan Sutton
545+vance+st
Toledo, OH 43604

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cathey Banks
16459 Welsh Ct
Moreno Valley, CA 92555

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Luke Toews
4501 E Aire Libre Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85032

=====
From: mrs. cleo thurston.
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mrs. cleo thurston.
12556 paige lane
farmington,, Arkansas 72730

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Scott
4720 A St
San Diego, CA 92102

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Republican
40+clipper+dr
Alameda, CA 94502

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tamra Inglis
605 E Walnut St
Summitville, IN 46070

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vicky Dearing
315 Highway 299 E
Emmet, AR 71835

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Denise Hill
4410+surrey+meadows+dr
Winterville, NC 28590

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Brent
13622 Kornblum Ave Apt 35
Hawthorne, CA 90250

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Evony Wilson
1030 Lee Road 39
Opelika, AL 36804

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Potts Potts
8845 Miner St
Los Angeles, CA 90002

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Becky Hodges
130 W Howcroft Ave
Billings, MO 65610

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Latoya Thomas
680 Jefferson Ave
Buffalo, NY 14204

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marsha
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Placerville
Zip: 95667

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Debra Hodge
1101 Asalee St
Altus, OK 73521

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Derek Hunnicutt
380 Chatham St # A
Baldwin, GA 30511

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Stacey Andrews
1620 Westlake Dr Apt 2010
Conway, AR 72034

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Paul McIntyre
24360 Vista Hills Dr
Valencia, CA 91355

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sonji Johnson
5501+S+14th+Way
Phoenix, AZ 85040

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Â¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Â¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Julie O'connor
30597+Meadowlark+Dr
Canyon+Lake, CA 92587

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Karen McGarvey
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 839 Main Street
Zip: 06790

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s

government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
William Hale
155 N Edison Way Ste 01
Reno, NV 89502

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rose Lumpkins
3167 Newport Ave
Sierra Vista, AZ 85635

=====
From: Mrs. Margaret Sykora
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Margaret Sykora

, 64114

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maxine Johnson
296 Kinard St
Orangeburg, SC 29118

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Perreault
3506 S St
Vancouver, WA 98663

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Hal Hardy Jr
2792 S Clark Dr
Atlanta, GA 30344

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rachel Snyder
745+crestwood+dr
St+augustine, FL 32086

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Seantiel Earl
2147 Myrtle Ave
Long Beach, CA 90806

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Margie Sotala
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Address: 15920 Fernwood Lane
Zip: 53005

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Stephen Hickey
12542 W Glenrosa Dr
Litchfield Pk, AZ 85340

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tina Vandiver
133 Cates Dr
Reliance, TN 37369

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rashida Butler
2942 Duncan Pl
Decatur, GA 30034

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sherry Roberts
31+waldens+dr
Bridgeton, NJ 08302

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amanda Gutierrez
770 W Leffel Ln
Springfield, OH 45506

=====

From: Mrs Rowe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mrs Rowe
41 Buehler Ave
Oroville, California 95966

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Anitha Sakthi
1208 Valley Stream Dr
Newark, DE 19702

=====
From: Mrs Sandra Fenili
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mrs Sandra Fenili
1346 Plainfield Rd
Joliet, Illinois 60435

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ruth Mathers
11370 W Hopi St
Avondale, AZ 85323

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sherron Williams
9044+s+phillips+ave
Chicago, IL 60617

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kris Rex
1304 1st St Se
Oelwein, IA 50662

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Veronica Roberson
4910+read+blvd
New+orleans, LA 70127

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sharon Walker
14700 Cooper Ave
Harvey, IL 60426

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Preston Walker
4321 Hodgenville Rd
Greensburg, KY 42743

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Betty Woodard
6103 Attala Road 2134
Mc Cool, MS 39108

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gretchen Benhardt
316 Quiet Country Dr
Saint Peters, MO 63376

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Henry M Roman
1008+wilshire+ave
Anchorage, AK 99503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dean Bremiller
8718 North St
Springville, NY 14141

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mark Koenig
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 302 S Peters Ave
Zip: 54935

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Reginald Hamilton
10615+beechnut+st+apt+405
Houston, TX 77072
=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Daniel Tippetts
960 Main St
Troy, MO 63379

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Camacho
921+w+elm+st
Deming, NM 88030

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Tamay
17472+jefferson+ln
Huntingtn+bch, CA 92647

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Thomas Smart Jr
2147 S Emporia St
Wichita, KS 67211

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tony Mendoza
307 E Ellsworth Ave
Anaheim, CA 92805

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Meghan Rudiger
179 Side Saddle
West Chester, PA 19382

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Rumore
50 Cottage Grn
Enfield, CT 06082

=====
From: m. rupe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

m. rupe
3608 lake drive
taylorville, Illinois 62568

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vance Collins
1907 Summerwalk Pkwy
Tucker, GA 30084

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brandon Westly
19490 Dry Gulch Rd
Corona, CA 92881

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
William Joseph
2066+falcon+dr+apt+e
Hampton, VA 23665

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Monica Ryan
13520+se+170th+st
Renton, WA 98058

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Meehan
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 773 Westminster Lane
Zip: 23454

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alicia Evan
475 Woody Dr
Jackson, MS 39212

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Simone Floyd
5215 Buckingham Ave
Detroit, MI 48224

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sarah Walker
4220 Old Stage Rd S
Erwin, NC 28339

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alexis Patrick
401 Glasco Rd
Salters, SC 29590

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Willie Jean Wilkerson
610 Nw 38th Ave
Ft Lauderdale, FL 33311

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: ISP categorization

FCC:Â

I am writing to express my opinion regarding net neutrality.

I believe the internet should remain a neutral place. Â I believe ISP's should be categorized as a title II industry.

Net neutrality is very important to me and, I believe, to all U.S Citizens. Â

Please protect the open internet. Â Thank you.

Mike Stel

Cross Plains, WI

Sent from my iPad

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Audrea Henderson
5333 Golf Forest Ct
Jacksonville, FL 32208

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mahamane Cisse
1640 Canberra Dr
Stone Mtn, GA 30088

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miguel Rivera
14866+sw+72nd+ter
Miami, FL 33193

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milika Fong
5982+e+25th+st
Tucson, AZ 85711

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Debra Miller
655 Seminary Ave
Oakdale, PA 15071

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Angie Mendoza
218 Greenhaven Dr
Dallas, TX 75217

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
April Concepcion
399+bob+millers+rd
Crawfordville, FL 32327

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
April Ganaway
4509+n+houghton+st
Portland, OR 97203

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Saracino
22+n+helmer+ave
Dolgeville, NY 13329

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Candrease Barnett
401 Bardin Greene Dr Apt 1123
Arlington, TX 76018

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marje eaton
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 420 so plum st

Zip: 45373

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Clara Mclean
1201 Shepherd St
Durham, NC 27707

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Blanchard
816 Wakefield Ave
Norfolk, VA 23502

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Brown
7262 Lakeridge Dr
Fort Wayne, IN 46819

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Scanlon
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1835 Nevada Ave
Zip: 88001

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Chandler
23915 Ayscough Ln
Katy, TX 77493

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Chantelle Morris
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Address: 1515 Beaser Ave. 107
Zip: 54806

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Diana Layton
1550 Us Hwy 83
Childress, TX 79201

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Schild
1104 Northside Dr
Shorewood, IL 60404

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Johnnie Robinson
9671 Meyers Rd
Detroit, MI 48227

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michael Scoggins
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 137 stanfield rd jackson Ga
Zip: 30233

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Allison C. Gatlin
po+box+73
Summit+argo, IL 60501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lisa Kosobudzki
1879+fescue+dr
Aurora, IL 60504

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vonda Mcarthur
9243 Penny Dr
Riverside, CA 92503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Decarlo
296 Hoboken Rd
E Rutherford, NJ 07073

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dawn Wallisrunyan
4201 Topanga Canyon Blvd Spc 01
Woodland Hls, CA 91364

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Diana Sailor
3472+seymour+ave+apt+3c
Bronx, NY 10469

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Deborah Hulien

109 Deer Run Dr
Colchester, CT 06415

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Missy Durbin
2280 Simmons St Unit A
Dupont, WA 98327

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miriam Sensat
817+5th+st
Lake+charles, LA 70601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

